ARMY DOES NOT PLAN NEW CAMP IN COUNTY AREA

Brigadier General Answers Chamber Of Commerce's Protest Telegram

ALL LOCATIONS CHOSEN

Chillicothe Investigations Have No Bearing On Current Plans

Establishment of an army camp in the Pickaway-Ross County area is not contemplated at the present time. This information came direct from the War Department Friday.

Brigadier General J. A. Ullo, acting Adjutant General, wrote in reply to a telegram sent to the Secretary of War by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce in protest against establishment of the proposed camp in the county. The Chamber cited that 50,000 acres of the highest producing soil in the nation would be erased from Pickaway County and that it believed the land in production would serve national welfare better than if it were used for a camp site.

General Ullo's letter follows: "Receipt is acknowledged of your telegram of August 22nd, addressed to the Secretary of War, concerning the possible location of an Army cantonment in Ross and Pickaway Counties, Ohio.

"All camp sites for the Army at its present strength have been selected and additional cantonments are not required at the present time.

"Investigations made in the Chillicothe area were a matter of long range planning and have no bearing on current plans. Establishment of a camp near Chillicothe is not contemplated at the present time."

CONDEMNED MAN WILL DIE WITH HIS CELL MATE

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Aug. 29.—The final wish of Eldon Hawk, 26, condemned murderer, will be granted today.

Hawk requested that he be permitted to die in San Quentin's lethal gas chamber today with John William Linniger, 40, another condemned slayer.

Instead of appealing for clemency, Hawk has repeatedly asked Gov. Culbert L. Olson to permit him to die with Linniger.

During their confinement in death-row, Hawk and Linniger became pals. In a final letter to the governor yesterday, Hawk said:

"I want to die because only then can I find peace, quiet and beauty I've never known on earth."

Hawk said he would take his own life by refusing medical treatment with insulin if the governor did not grant his final wish. He is a diabetic.

Hawk was sentenced to die for the 1940 slaying of Lee Arris, retired San Diego mechanic. Linniger was convicted of killing Louis E. Jette, 28, with poison in a cabin near Red Bluff last year.

Too Young

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD Douglas Anderson, of Watchung, N. J., is shown in his uniform as a rookie in the famed 48th Highlanders of the Canadian Army, which he joined after running away from home to seek adventure. He has been discharged by the military authorities following protest by his parents and proof of his true age, which he had exaggerated.

NEGRO ADMITS SEVEN MURDERS

Washington D. C. Police Clear Up Baffling Sex Cases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — Police early today obtained confessions of seven rape murders from Jarvis Roosevelt Catoe, 38-year-old Washington Negro.

The confessions solved the sex slayings of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23, war department clerk, formerly of Des Moines, Ia., killed in Washington, June 15; Mrs. Evelyn Dorothea Andersen, 26, waitress, killed in the Bronx, New York, on August 4; Mrs. Rose Abramowitz, formerly of Kansas City, killed in the capital March 8, and the rape murders of four Negro women in Washington. He also confessed to raping five other Washington women in recent months.

Catoe was first taken into custody for questioning in the sex-slaying of Mrs. Andersen. The first tangible clue which led to his arrest came when New York police traced a wrist watch stolen from the waitress to a Harlem pawnshop and then located the girl who pawned the watch. She told police that Catoe had given her the watch and also a handbag which was taken from Mrs. Andersen. She gave them his Washington address.

THE PRESIDENT'S LABOR DAY TALK OF IMPORTANCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—President Roosevelt hinted today that a Labor Day radio broadcast he will make from his Hyde Park home would be of significance in relation to the international situation.

When asked to comment today on the general world outlook as the second anniversary of the outbreak of the European war approached, Mr. Roosevelt replied that he was making a radio address on Labor Day—which happened to be the actual date of that anniversary.

TWO AUTOMOBILES CRASH AT WASHINGTON, LOGAN

Both cars were damaged but no one was injured at noon Friday when automobiles of Earl Garner, 921 South Washington Street, and William Burgoon, Ashville Route 2, collided at Washington and Logan Streets.

Garner was traveling north on Washington and Burgoon was going east on Logan.

MANY MILLIONS FOR DEFENSIVE WORK REQUIRED

Senate Committee To Wind Up Important Statute For $3,688,500,000

BUDGET CHIEF CALLED

Smith To Be Asked How He Would Reduce Expenses By Two Billion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—With the Senate Finance Committee planning to complete a $3,688,500,000 tax bill today, the treasury informed the committee that a second tax measure will be proposed almost immediately after the present legislation becomes law.

The second bill, though designed chiefly to solve administrative problems, may be made the vehicle for raising additional hundreds of millions to help finance the expanding defense program.

The committee, which plans to present its new bill to the Senate next Wednesday, sought to raise the total of $4,000,000,000, but failed when some proposed new taxes were found unacceptable. It had, however, raised the total nearly $500,000,000 above the bill as it passed the House.

"We did the best we could," said Democratic Leader Barkley who advocated boosting the total to $4,000,000,000.

"It is a pretty tough bill as it is," commented Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich.

Non-Defense Items Hit

The measure will go to the Senate, however, with the finance committee backing a move launched by Sen. Byrd (D) Va., to force the New Deal to slash non-defense expenditures.

The committee called on Budget Director Harold Smith to report to congress how he would cut non-defense expenditures a billion, a billion and a half or two million if he were ordered to do so.

A provision was incorporated in the bill creating a joint committee to be composed of six members.

NEW SEVEN MAN BOARD HANDLES DEFENSE TASKS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — A general shakeup in defense agencies all down the line was forecast today after President Roosevelt created a new seven-man board to administer a defense program that will gradually pinch off output of a tremendous amount of civilian goods so that raw materials can be diverted to production of war weapons.

Creation of the board, which marks a shift from peace-time to war time economy, was authorized in an executive order signed by Mr. Roosevelt. Vice President Henry A. Wallace was named as chairman. The other six members are Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend coordinator, Price Administrator Leon S. Henderson, Defense Chief's William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, Secretary of Navy Knox and Secretary of War Stimson.

However, the strong man of the new defense setup who emerged from the reshuffling by President Roosevelt is Donald Nelson, former Chicago mail order house executive and until last night OPM purchasing director. Nelson was selected by Mr. Roosevelt to be the executive officer of the new super defense agency. Nelson also was named as the new director of priorities succeeding E. R. Stettinius Jr., who was shifted to become lease-lend administrator.

The seven-man board was charged with drawing up the board defense policies. After it sets the policies, it will be up to Nelson to carry them out. Nelson has seen more eye-to-eye with the New Deal than most of the 400 dollar-a-year men who have been drafted into various agencies.

French Leader's Condition Grave

Vichy Says Concern Being Expressed For Ex-Premier, Shot By Young Gunman

VICHY, France, Aug. 29—The condition of former Premier Pierre Laval, victim of an anti-Nazi assassin, gave new cause for alarm today despite reassuring statements from the doctors attending him in Paris.

Laval's temperature has increased slightly, it was learned. The possibility of a hemorrhage or peritonitis exists, it was said, but if neither of these complications develop, he should recover normally.

(Editor's Note: The London Star reported from an undisclosed source that Laval's condition has suddenly become worse, requiring an emergency consultation among his doctors.)

Meanwhile, all members of the anti-Bolshevik brigade which Laval was inspecting when he was shot were reported under arrest as a precautionary measure.

Paris newspapers said the arrests were carried out by authorities in German-occupied France to prevent further assassination attempts.

Communists were still being rounded up in the occupied and unoccupied zones alike as a sequel to the attempt to kill Laval, chief advocate of French collaboration with the Nazi Reich.

(Editor's Note: A Paris dispatch received by way of Berlin confirmed that arrests were continuing and that an unidentified woman standing near Laval's would-be assassin was stabbed by an unknown assailant during the excitement. Five eminent French surgeons have replaced the German army physicians originally assigned to Laval's care, it was said.)

Paris newspapers said the gunman, Paul Colette, whose bullets wounded Laval, Marcel Deat and two others, was formerly a member of Col. Laroque's French social party but that he quit this political group "because they were too collaborationist."

RECONNAISSANCE NEED DESCRIBED BY ARMY CHIEF

ROSTON, Ark., Aug. 29—Premature commitments of troops in battle without proper reconnaissance was pointed out today by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., Seventh Corps commander, as the greatest fault of the Second Army's Arkansas maneuvers.

At a critique attended by all officers of the corps, General Richardson declared that such tactics, if followed in actual war, would produce "terrible losses." Both sides in the latest war problem, he said, had "much to learn."

Charging that both sides failed to make "deep reconnaissance," the commander added: "This is deplorable. The futility of slamming huge masses of men headlong into each other without knowing the entire situation should be realized and the lesson learned."

"Personally I believe in the cavalry spirit—to go around them. I think we should all have more daring, more imagination."

The forces of Maj. Gen. Lawton, commander of the 33rd Division of Illinois guardsmen, were criticized rather severely for failing to "take into account all features of the terrain."

On the matter of maintaining communications lines in battle, Gen. Richardson urged officers to take advantage of commercial telephone lines where necessary, and he mentioned that the 27th Division of New York troops "has done this several times to good effect." He commented generally on the improvement of the corps' communications by radio and other means.

GREENVILLE, Aug. 29 — Esther Freymouth, 8, was dead today of injuries suffered when she fell from the bumper of an automobile which her uncle, Carl Holmes, started without knowing of the child's presence.

Found!! Brenda's Successor

FACED with the necessity of finding a replacement for Brenda Frazier, who automatically relinquished her long-held position as cafe society's "Glamor Girl No. 1" by assuming the new title of Mrs. John "Shipwreck" Kelly, debutantes and society boys met in New York's Stork club and chose Miss Betty Cordon, above, as the "Glamor Girl of 1941-42." To the accompaniment of popping flash bulbs, the 18-year-old daughter of a prominent banker assured newsmen that (1) "I'm very excited"; (2) "I didn't expect it"; (3) "I do not think I am the glamor type."

MOTHER OF SIX STATE WORKMAN DAY OLD CHILD ALMOST BURIED HEART VICTIM IN GRAVEL PIT

A heart attack only an hour after she was returned from Berger Hospital to her home in Saltcreek Township with her six day old baby caused death Thursday at 5:15 p. m. of Mrs. Ora Mae Arledge, 25, wife of John Francis Arledge.

The child, named Doris, was born in the hospital a week ago, and Mrs. Arledge and her baby were released from the hospital in apparent good health Thursday. The mother's death was sudden, and came as a shock to many friends and relatives in Pickaway County. The baby, her third child, is getting along well.

Mrs. Arledge was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Kerns, her father living in Saltcreek Township, two miles north of Saltcreek school. Her mother is dead. Her husband, father and three children, Barbara Ann, 5; Carolyn Mae, 2, and Doris, six days old, and the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Harry Arledge, Kingston; Ralph Kerns, Circleville Route 1; Mrs. Charles Metzger, Circleville Route 1; Glenn, Circleville Route 4; Mrs. Morris Vanscoy, Columbus, and Mrs. Floyd Arledge, Kingston, survive.

The body will be taken Saturday to the home of James Arledge, her father-in-law, southeast of Dresbach Church. The funeral will be Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Dresbach Church, the Rev. L. S. Metzler officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery by the Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Friends may call at the James Arledge home Saturday afternoon.

SIX PERSONS DIE AS DRIVER FAILS TO WATCH TRAIN

HARRINGTON, Del., Aug. 29 —Kent County authorities planned a thorough inquest today into an automobile-train collision which took the lives of six persons, including a mother and her four children, at Powell's crossing, two miles south of Harrington.

The dead were William J. Derickson, 42, Harrington, driver of the car; Mrs. Violet Salmons, 40, Farmington, sister of Derickson, and her children—Louise, 10, Grace, eight, Charles, six, and Stella, two.

Police said a fast north-bound Pennsylvania milk - passenger train collided with Derickson's car when the motorist started across the track after allowing a south-bound freight train to pass.

BERLIN, Aug. 29 — A secret conference between Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini on the Russian battlefield was disclosed today.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — President Roosevelt today said the question of peace in the Pacific is, like the ocean itself, too broad to venture an opinion at present whether war can be averted there.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 — The Berlin radio today reported a declaration by the director of the Department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Tokyo to the effect that "an agreement with the United States has taken place," according to a broadcast picked up in New York by NBC.

By International News Service

War-weary Japan put her hundred million civilians on a virtual battle footing today—just in case—although all signs pointed to a speedy diminution of tension between Nippon and the United States.

While German forces surged toward Leningrad, capturing Estonia's capital of Tallinn and severing the vital railway line which connects the one-time Russian imperial capital with the western world, momentous measures were undertaken in Tokyo.

A decree handed down by the cabinet of Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye ordered immediate fulltime mobilization of labor to eliminate the "leisure class", and all unemployment and gear the Far Eastern Island empire for whatever may come.

At the same time, Lieutenant Commander Kengo Tominaga, speaking on behalf of the Japanese navy, charged in a nationwide broadcast that the United States had gone far beyond mere collaboration with the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at Chungking.

Washington, he charged, has now assumed full and acknowledged leadership of a campaign to "encircle" Japan with the aid of Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies.

Reuter, Britain's authoritative news agency, reported from Tokyo that the chiefs of Japan's army, navy and air force had been summoned to an emergency cabinet session to discuss American-Japanese relations in the light of yesterday's virtually unprecedented conference between President Roosevelt and Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura.

Washington, however, held to the outlook that an early improvement of the Far Eastern prognosis was in sight.

All the news of the Russo-German war came from Berlin, which cascaded a new series of triumphant announcements. Not only was Tallinn taken, the German capital said but the new

HARRIMAN WILL DIRECT U. S. MISSION TO SOVIET

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—President Roosevelt disclosed today that W. Averell Harriman will head the U. S. mission to the joint conference at Moscow with Soviet and British authorities looking to a coordination of greater resistance to the German threat.

Full personnel of the mission, which will include high-ranking army and navy officers, will be announced early next week.

COUNTY SCHOOL MEN TO CONFER HERE SATURDAY

Superintendents To Hear Health And Relief Directors, Others

PREPARE FOR OPENING

Classes To Start Monday, Tuesday In Various Buildings

Pickaway County school superintendents will gather Saturday at the county school office in the courthouse to discuss arrangements for opening classes next Monday and Tuesday. Some of the schools will get under way Labor Day, with teachers' meetings and short class sessions, while others will wait for Tuesday and start with full schedules.

Superintendent George D. McDowell said that several matters of importance would be conducted during the meeting, including election of a secretary, that position now being filled by Harold Strous of Salt Creek Township; distribution of supplies and forms and explanation of forms; an address by Dr. A. D. Blackburn on the health program for schools; an outline by Delos H. Marcy, relief director, of the school lunch program and surplus commodities, in addition to other subjects that may be brought up during the session.

It is expected that the meeting will last until noon, starting at 9:15 a. m.

State Director Speaks Sept. 13

The first meeting of the new school year for rural teachers will be September 13 at Walnut Township school, with Kenneth Ray, new state director of education, as the principal speaker.

Others on the program will include Walton B. Bliss, executive secretary of the Ohio Education Association; Harold J. Bowers, supervisor of certification, and Mrs. Sarah Dover, whose topic will be "Eye-handicapped Children and Their Problem".

The program has not been completed, but music is expected to be furnished by Walnut Township pupils.

Pan-American Aces Go To Rescue of British

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—President Roosevelt didn't announce it, but there were two big reasons why Pan-American Airways is taking over the ferrying of airplanes across the South Atlantic and up the interior of Africa to the Near East.

One reason has since been published, the need of American warplanes to help the British in Iran and thus protect Russian oil fields in the Caucasus.

The other has not been published—namely that the British had been wrecking an extraordinarily large number of brand new planes in flying them across Africa.

As a matter of cold, unpleasant fact, the British have been losing about 20 percent of the planes we have been giving them.

This was partly because the British did not use their own pilots, but Czech, French, Poles and Dutch.

These aviators, sometimes too full of sledge, and sometimes not too well trained in the tough job of handling fast war planes, have succeeded in scattering the wrecks over the heart of Africa.

Furthermore, central Africa is one of the most uncharted and difficult flying areas in the world. The hop across the Atlantic has not caused the casualties. It is the remainder of the flight, from Freetown on the West African coast, up to Egypt.

This is why Roosevelt finally called upon Pan American Airways to take over the African hop. Its pilots have done a brilliant job of pioneering the jungles of the Amazon and the peaks of the Andes. And Roosevelt figured that if anyone could fly over Africa, Pan American could do it.

HUEY LONG vs. LaFOLLETTE

Genial David Lynn, Architect of the Capitol, didn't realize what a hornet's nest he was poking when he ordered the statue of Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., one of the showpieces of the Capitol's famed Statuary Hall, moved forward two feet.

Followers of the late Huey Long have been on Lynn's neck ever since, accusing him of trying to "hide" the statue of their hero, located next to that of LaFollette. However, what they don't know is that the man chiefly responsible for the rearrangement was not Lynn, but the famous sculptor, Jo Davidson.

Davidson executed the stone image of LaFollette in 1929 and is immensely proud of it. On a recent visit to the Capitol, he was walking through Statuary Hall with Lynn when he noticed that his work was partially hidden from view by the bronze figure of the Louisiana Kingfish.

"You can't see the profile of LaFollette when you walk in here from the Rotunda," complained Davidson. "Can't something be done about it?"

Lynn agreed with Davidson and promised to move the LaFollette statue forward two feet, placing it a half-foot in front of Huey's. Within a few hours Lynn began receiving phone calls hotly protesting the change. Several callers inquired if Long's statue had "disappeared." Lynn is politely answering all the complaints, but has no intention of rescinding his order.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Taking a cue from the German Stuka dive bombers, U. S. Army engineers have included a powerful siren in the midjet M3 tanks. Its shrill shriek freezes green troops, and the Army is counting on its scare power, at a seventy mile an hour speed, to make advance breaks through enemy lines.

turned the tables and invaded Russia, there was a large Russian army isolated down in the Caucasus where it could not take part in the defense of the Ukraine. Transportation is difficult and these troops could not return. Neutral military experts who knew about the situation, thought the Germans had pulled a neat trick.

It now develops, however, that these Russian troops in the Caucasus may prove a life saver. In the first place they will be needed there to defend the vital Russian oil fields. Second, it was the presence of this powerful force which permitted the Russians to advance into Iran more quickly than the British.

Finally, this route through the Caucasus and Iran now turns out to be the chief line of communication between Russia and her ally, Great Britain. There are only three possible means of getting British supplies into Russia: (1) Archangel and the Arctic, which in addition to being frozen, is already virtually cut off by German troops; (2) Vladivostok which can be shut off by Japan; and (3) through the Gulf of Persia and Iran.

This latter is the shortest route and the one which will be used. It is a rough, tough route with one mountain-winding highway and no railroad. But at least there are ample Russian troops on hand to guard it—thanks to advance Nazi trickery which backfired.

Note—These troops will be especially needed if Hitler decides to invade Turkey and close in on the Caucasian oil fields from two directions.

While the secretary of commerce is a member of the U. S. president's cabinet, he is not in line of succession to the presidency.

Prisoners Face Court Saturday

Arraignments Set For 9 A. M. Before Judge Terwilliger; 15 Indicted

Judge Meeker Terwilliger of Common Pleas court will conduct arraignment at 9 a. m. Saturday for prisoners indicted by the grand jury that met the first three days this week.

The jurors returned 15 indictments, included among which is one for manslaughter, two for burglary and larceny of an inhabited dwelling, one for arson, three for statutory offenses, one for driving when intoxicated; one for failing to provide, one for forgery, one for assault and battery and three of burglary and larceny in theft of chickens.

Two secret indictments were also returned, but no information will be announced concerning these two cases until arrests of the persons named have been made.

Two May Be Sent To Local Sheriff

Release of two Mansfield reformatory prisoners to Pickaway County authorities, if local officials want them, was announced this week. The prisoners named are Harry Boy and Forest Wonderly, both of whom are serving time from Marion County on robbery charges.

They will be released October 1 to Sheriff Charles Radcliff if he wants to return them here for trial on similar charges. The sheriff said Friday that he couldn't recall on what charge they may

DIDN'T LIKE RELATIVES, BUT DEATH PLAN FAILS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29—An apparent suicide attempt was frustrated today for Albert Schuer, 80, who, poised for a leap from the Detroit-Superior high level bridge over the Cuyahoga River, was pulled to safety by Otto G. Doehner, a city fireman. Doehner saw the man prepare for the jump as he was driving across the span with his wife last night.

Doehner jammed on his brakes, dashed across the sidewalk and caught Schuer by the seat of his trousers as he swung one foot over the rail. Schuer told police he retired as a tailor two years ago and didn't get along with his relatives.

BIG EVENT!

Call for Men Trained In Engineering Sounds

A call for reserve officers who possess a background in engineering, architecture, or construction, was issued Friday by Lt. Col. B. F. Vandervoort, Fifth Zone Construction Quartermaster.

Anticipating the start of additional defense construction work in Zone V (Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia), the Zone office has begun a survey of available reserve officers who may be called to active duty or who may be transferred from their present assignments to accept duty as Constructing Quartermasters and Assistant Constructing Quartermasters or Utilities Officers in the Zone.

MARINE CORPS RECRUITER TO APPEAR HERE SEPT. 3

First Sgt. Robert Bailey, a representative of the Marine Corps Recruiting Station in Chillicothe, will be in Circleville Sept. 3, between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. to interview young men between the ages of 17-30 who are interested in enlisting in the Marine Corps and Marine Corps Reserve.

The Marine Corps now offers two types of enlistments, one for a period of four years, and the other for the duration of the national emergency. Applicants, after passing the recruiting sergeant's examination will be required to present themselves at the recruiting station in Chillicothe where they will be furnished transportation to Cincinnati, for their final examination. From Cincinnati, they will be sent to Parris Island, S. C. for six weeks recruit training.

NEW ARMY OFFICE

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y. — The new army moves fast—sometimes a little too fast for the ordinary citizen. The new titles used in the army these days have him all confused. A letter arrived in the office of the Mitchell Field Public Relations Officer and he was momentarily stunned to note it was addressed to the "Public Religious Officer."

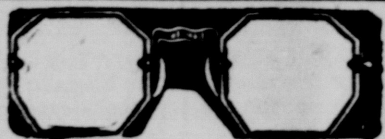

prayer meeting following; C. E. 7 p. m., preaching following; prayer meeting Thursday 8 p. m.
Dreibach: Sunday School 9:30, prayer meeting following; Prayer meeting Thursday 8 p. m.

A two-fold problem is faced by the construction division of the Quartermaster Corps with respect to commissioned officers. First, a majority of the officers now on construction duty with the Quartermaster Corps belongs to other arms and services such as infantry, field artillery, coast artillery, signal corps, etc., and faces possible recall to permanent assignments. Second, additional construction projects are expected to start soon in Zone V thereby increasing demand for officers in this work.

Lt. Col. Vandervoort has circulated all officers on duty with Constructing Quartermasters in Zone V, requesting them to submit applications for permanent transfer to the Quartermaster Corps. In addition, the Zone Office is seeking to obtain the names of other officers who are either on duty or who have not yet been called to active duty, who would be qualified to serve in various capacities with the construction division of the Quartermaster Corps.

Officers interested in serving with this division of the Quartermaster Corps, which is supervising construction of more than $275,000,000 worth of munitions plants, proving ground facilities, troop housing, warehousing and maintenance and repair work in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, are requested to address a letter to the Zone Constructing Quartermaster, Zone V, 232 North High Street, Columbus.

INVESTIGATION HELD IN YOUNG MOTHER'S DEATH

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29—An investigation was launched today by Coroner S. R. Gerber into the fatal shooting of Mrs. Helen Pesta, 27-year-old mother of a four-week-old baby, whose death police tentatively described as suicide.

Gerber said the investigation was ordered after it was discovered that Mrs. Pesta had been shot twice through the heart, and not once as reported earlier by police. The coroner said he wanted to determine the possibility of the victim having fired a second bullet after being mortally wounded by the first.

The woman's body was found yesterday by her husband, Frank, who said he found his wife on the floor, a .38-caliber revolver nearby. Relatives told police Mrs. Pesta had been despondent over ill health.

TO ALL OF US

FRIENDS: This is a note to every person in Circleville, just a reminder that Circleville is in a serious condition, financially speaking. Failure of council and other city officials to get out and "sell" the public on the need of passing the defeated one and one-half mill levy a couple weeks ago, and refusal of Circleville voters to realize the need for the money that could have been raised by this levy has left the city in a tough spot. All departments should be cut because there isn't money to meet payrolls, or to pay other current expenses, such as light, water and fuel bills. It just can't be done when the old miazuma isn't there; and it isn't there. School opens in Circleville September 8, and with the opening of school there will be scores of little children going back and forth between their homes and the various school buildings. In the last couple of years school areas have been patrolled by a city officer, lessons in safety have been explained for the youngsters, and as a result Circleville's total of injuries received by children to and from school is very low. Now the question is voiced whether an officer will be available to patrol the school districts. Likely, there will be no patrolman available for this job. And it's a shame. But, it all reverts back to the lack of community interest in vital issues at stake. Maybe Circleville has not taken care of its money, and maybe it has. The fact remains that the treasury is bare, that bills will go on.

TO GRAND JURORS

MEN, WOMEN: Congratulations to you for making a recommendation that flasher lights be placed at two of Pickaway County's more dangerous rural intersections, Routes 159 and 56 and Routes 104 and 56. There isn't any question that these two crossings are dangerous, that flashers are needed and that the state highway department should see that they are spotted at the proper places without delay. A grand jury's recommendation should carry considerable weight, so I hope that proper authorities see that pressure is applied in the right places. A few years ago a flasher light was spotted at

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE
FRANK MURPHY evidently does not agree with guessers who have surmised that Herr Hitler wouldn't have attacked Russia if he could have helped it, but that his army leaders launched the campaign in spite of him.

In his recent Atlantic City talk before the Knights of Columbus meeting, he put the entire responsibility up to Adolf. He didn't offer an outright explanation of his obvious assumption that the Fuehrer started the fighting on the Nazis' eastern frontier, but the guessers inferred one from the general nature of his address, and it does have the ring of a certain amount of plausibility.

The guessing fraternity, in this country and probably in others, has been puzzled all along to account for Berlin's policy in favor of pitching into the Soviet outfit with its forces so considerably engaged elsewhere. Nobody's imagined that the mere existence of a friendly pact between himself and Joe Stalin would have served to deter Adolf from opening fire on his Muscovite neighbors whenever he deemed it, from his standpoint, a good time to do so. Plenty of observers, however, have wondered why he thought the time ripe when he actually did it. He was pretty busy already elsewhere. Why didn't he prefer to wait until, and if he had the democracies all disposed of?

Some suggestions have been made that he suspected Comrade

Stalin of planning to jump him by surprise in the midst of his activities in the opposite direction. That theory hardly holds water, though. Joe very manifestly didn't want to get into a rumput with Germany until he was ready. He put up with a deal of Adolf's Balkan rearrangements that he can't have liked, and didn't say much about it. He didn't begin shooting until he had to.

SUPPLIES THEORY WEAK

There's also the hypothesis that the Nazis took the warpath into Soviet territory to grab oil, grain and miscellaneous raw material that they need now and propose to keep as their very own, on into perpetuity. Still, Russia was letting 'em have these supplies anyway. It's conceivable that the Fuehrer had it in mind to acquire, not only the supplies, but also the Russian soil that they're grown on and from which they're dug up and bored for. But why couldn't that detail have been left until later?

In short, the guessers haven't given Herr Hitler credit for a bit of decency, but they HAVE given him credit for a lot of good judgment, and his attack on Russia, at this particular juncture, hasn't made sense to 'em, on that supposition.

That's how the notion was evolved that, disregarding his preference, the German army command, traditionally anti-Russian, tore loose against the Soviet bunch in spite of him.

But Justice Murphy's implied guess is another one. The justice didn't definitely enunciate it, but the expert guessers are doing it for him.

The dope is that Adolf will the attack, but not for the sake of attacking Russia—for the sake, instead, of winning over the Christian democracies to the Axis.

The reasoning, for whatever it may be worth, is this: Adolf finally came to realize that the democracies will lick him in the long run. Accordingly, he said to himself, "I've got to get that aggression into cahoots with me, or I'm done for. How accomplish it? Well, the democracies are Christians and the Communists are a crew of rank infidels. I'll spring a holy war on 'em. Then the democracies will HAVE to line up with me. Having done so, they CAN'T lick me."

NOT AS SCHEDULED

It didn't work out that way. The democracies are backing Russia — not Communism, but RUSSIA — versus Nazism and Fascism and Spanish Palangism, as allied with Nazism and Fascism. It's another guess whether or not Adolf's "holy war" would have made more of a hit with the Christian democracies if he and his fellow Nazis hadn't started off so anti-religiously that their "holy war" gets the ha-ha when they proclaim it.

If it's a fact that Adolf was trying to win over the democracies, to spare his life, by jumping on "infidel Russia," that's one of the funniest features of it all. Anyway, the guessers are indebted to Justice Murphy for their newest hunch.

Routes 104 and 22, west of Circleville, and not a single fatal accident has happened there since that time. Prior to installation of the flasher serious accidents happened almost monthly, with the fatality toll continuing to pile up. Thousands of words were written urging extra safeguards at the corner before it was finally installed. That the grand jury recognizes the seriousness of these two crossings is pleasing to me, because if the jury understands the situation it is certain that other persons in other parts of the community are aware of the dangers at the two crossings named. They can do their part by asking friends to ask their friends to support the drive which, it is hoped, will lead to installation of life-saving flasher signals.

TO REV. W. D. RAMSEY

SIR: I am very pleased that your church conference has seen fit to return you to Circleville for your third year as pastor in charge of Calvary Evangelical Church. Circleville is proud of its ministers, and it is pleased to have you back again. Your church has been making successful strides in the last two years, and I feel certain that they will continue under your supervision.

CIRCUITEER.

TO PUMPKIN SHOW CHIEFS

MEN: The move you made at your meeting this week in which you voted to induce outstanding bands to appear in Circleville on different days to add some zest to the show should work out successfully. You set up a sum of money, and gave instructions that bands should be contacted for the event. Under the plan a "name" band will appear each day, that particular organization to have full sway in the show district in an effort to keep things pepped up. You are not having free acts this year, so you must have something to replace them. It is the present plan that enough money will be available to bring some of Ohio's finest organizations to the city. I hope that persons in charge will get into action at once, so the success of this event can be assured.

CIRCUITEER.

TO LOCAL YOUTHS

BOYS: The other day the National Youth Administration voiced a request for applications from young fellows who are not going back to school and who want to make $21 each month by putting in 80 hours of work, most of which and possibly all of which will be at the Ted Lewis Recreation Center, Circleville's new playground. The number of youths available for work of this type is limited since many young men who are not going back to school have already obtained work. However, I believe there are some young fellows available who would benefit themselves and their families if they would sign up. A trip to the northend field to see Charles Bosworth, supervisor of the work, would repay you.

DIET AND HEALTH

Former Players Agree on Dangers of Football

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● In my crusade against injuries resulting from the present football rules and organizations, I do not get support entirely from sides or the parents of boys on high school and college football teams.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Last year I had a number of letters from ex-players, even ex-stars, supporting my views and saying that they would never let their sons play football.

I quote from one of these:—"I have, as you know, been a doctor for a good many years, and have been trying to live down the past as having been associated with football as a player, a coach, and an official. I have seen the game from every angle. The net result to me was a loss of so many teeth as to seriously impair my general health for many years. That is not to mention injuries to my knee that caused me many sleepless nights of agony."

Serious Injuries

"At one time I made a study of football players engaged in a big game, and found that all of the high school students who played through the game had blood cells in the urine. This may have been psychological, but if often repeated can not help being serious."

"Within the past four years I have had three cases of ruptured kidney referred to me, all results of a football injury. Two of the cases were high school boys. In both cases it was necessary to remove the kidney to save life."

"What is the matter that this can go on? The game is profitable to everyone but the player."

Other Players Write

Another excerpt from my correspondence is as follows:—"I played high school football; too much of it. Because I have a suspicion that the ill effects of the sport do not become evident until years later and I think so-called minor injuries often develop into something serious later on. In one game I was bent backwards. The boys started piling on and pretty soon I was supporting most of them on my arched back. Now, at twenty-eight, about once a year, my back goes bad with the least strain."

"I agree with you that the matter ought to be taken in hand by the public. The son of a man here who struggles to keep his children in school had a boy who spent last January, February and March in the hospital with the attendant expense and care."

Cracked Vertebrae

My morning paper carries the following item: "Hollywood: Nine years ago when he was playing prep football at Mercersburg, Virginia, John Payne, film star, husband of actress Ann Shirley, was kicked in the back."

"Although he didn't know it at the time, he cracked his third vertebra, and now, years later, Payne is forced to undergo a spinal operation."

"And all for what? For playing a game that is supercharged with commercialism, which long ago lost its amateur standing, and which is a complete and unmitigated bore to the spectators because of the constant change in rules."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. S.: "I seem to have an insatiable desire for candy, and can easily eat a full pound of candy at any time. My weight is normal and yet I feel certain I should not eat as much candy as I do. Is it a bad habit, or is it some deficiency in my system?"

Answer: I believe it is a bad habit.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendingen has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendingen, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Castle of Contentment

By LORENA CARLETON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

"TAKE YOUR eyes off him and keep them off," Scott told the nervous, terrified girl, after she had revealed the man was Clarkson, the old Vincent butler. He reached for her hand. The palm was cold and sweaty. "Drink your drink. Act natural."

"I can't act natural. I'm scared and I can't help it," she said tremulously.

Hamilton felt the convulsive sharpness of her fingernails. "Oh, be sensible, Ylena, it's absurd for you to be scared. He's the one to be scared. He will be when he sees you."

"No, he won't. He doesn't know I helped trap him."

"Then let's tell him."

She made a quick refusal. "No, no! That would be worse!" She was watching Clarkson with a sidewise look. "He's so mean, Scott, through and through." Her breath sharpened, and he sees me now. He'll probably come over here to pay mealy-mouthed respects, and all the while he's talking, he'll be trying to think up something mean to do to me."

"Then we'll beat him to it, we'll go speak to him first. I think I can squelch him." Scott clamped strong, comforting fingers about the girl's bare arm, lifted her insistently, and started toward Clarkson's table before he could start toward theirs. "He can't possibly harm you so long as you're with me. I'll do most of the talking," he said under his breath.

Clarkson was standing when they reached him, in a smiling bow, insolence beneath its homage. In answer to the girl's nod, he said in oily hypocrisy, "How nice to see you, Mrs. Vincent—or Miss Varanoff, I should say. Please forgive me."

Scott laughed heartily as his fingers forcefully propelled Ylena to a chair. He then released her and answered the foxlike grin of their table partner. "Go ahead! Call her Mrs. Vincent. That's right. I've effected a reconciliation." He tossed a calling-card before Clarkson's astounded gaze. "I'm Cosmo Harrison, the attorney. Yes, I've done the impossible. With Vernon Stone's help we brought them together again." He beamed toward Ylena. "Haven't we, my dear?" Eyes downcast, the girl nodded and outrageous color stained her face. Scott cried with joy. "Watch her blush!" and cackled in raucous laughter. He flung an arm toward a waiter. "Champagne. We've got a celebration on hand."

In a sly voice Clarkson insinuated, "I'm surprised Mr. Vincent isn't with you."

Though raging inside, Scott Hamilton's laughter boomed forth again. He even slapped the overly curious scoundrel on the arm in a comradely fashion, realizing of course Ylena's was a strong weapon of Ylena's. What Clarkson really wished to know was Vincent's whereabouts.

"Theodore Vincent is a changed man! Yes, sir, a changed man. He trusts his wife. Besides, he's joining us tomorrow. Flying down from Miami Beach. You'll want to see each other, of course."

Clarkson hastened to say, "I'm not sure—"

Scott Hamilton broke in. "What's that? Ylena told me you had worked for her husband for years, that he was most devoted to you. You both would be disappointed if you didn't meet again—of course you're going to see him!"

Clarkson searched the other man's face, blandly smiling, then dampened his dry lips in champagne before he spoke. "It was only trying to say I wouldn't be in Santiago tomorrow. Various interests keep me traveling. I'll probably be miles away by tomorrow. In fact, I should have gone today." Small beads of sweat stood out on his forehead as he raced through stammering words.

"Where are you going?" Hamilton asked in rude bluntness. "It's hard to tell. The north coast of South America, I should say."

Scott Hamilton said with confidence, "We'll probably run into you somewhere as we go through the Canal. We're on our way west." He smiled pleasantly into Clarkson's disconcerted face. "And now, if you'll excuse us, Mrs. Vincent and I will get back to our table. He haven't had dinner."

Back at their table, Ylena said in low certainty, "He's not the only one leaving Santiago tomorrow."

"Why should we leave if he leaves?"

"The town is spoiled for me now. Besides, Scott, simply because you have the broadest shoulders outside of a boxing arena, don't be sure you've scared him away."

"He's plenty bothered," Scott decided, then laughed. "He just upset his wine."

Ylena looked over and saw a waiter busy with a cloth. "All the same, he's not yet frightened out of the cafe. You're dealing with a sneak, Scott. He's puzzled now, but when he calms down enough to think and ask a few questions about us—I'm not so sure."

"Perhaps you're right. We'll have Pepe scout us back to Havana, then fly down to Jamaica. He motioned a waiter to his side and began a consultation about their orders. "And," he concluded, "I would like to speak to the officer leaning against the bar."

Immediately the policeman was at their table. "Is there anything wrong, sir?"

Hamilton quitted his arm instantly. "No, indeed! I merely thought you might be able to tell us the name of the artist who did these water colors. We especially admire that one of the little boy at market, with the pigs." Deliberately he pointed to the one hanging directly above Clarkson's head. The police officer turned a frowning scrutiny in that direction. Scott said, "They ARE pigs, aren't they?"

The uniformed man peered again, nodding his head up and down. "Oh, yes," and went into rapid gesticulating details. He then gave the artist's name, or rather, chain or names.

In despair, Scott said, "That's too much for me. Would you mind writing it?"

Under the officer's second look, Clarkson had begun to fidget. He took out a cigarette, then put it back in his case, unlighted. His eyes narrowed with worried perplexity, as he watched Ylena's table partner continue his engrossing conversation with the officer. Was this lawyer, Harrison, Clarkson wondered, as good a natured and stupidly ignorant of the situation between him and his former employer, as he seemed to be? What did he know? What didn't he know?

Why did they keep looking over at him, pointing? And what had the attorney said to the officer, to make him write so carefully on his little pad?

Sudden music blared forth, and dancers moved onto the floor, shutting out the view of Clarkson, nervous fingered and pale beneath his tan. In appreciation of the policeman's information, Scott Hamilton gave him a bill, then further detained him with a glass of wine. As he left the table the music ceased and dancing couples milled back to their chairs. Through closely-meshed lashes, Ylena stole a glance at the table near the door. Clarkson had fled.

Safe at the hotel in Kingston, the girl realized that her heart had been trip-hammering from the moment she first saw Clarkson in the native cafe, until they climbed aboard the plane for Jamaica. Even when the ship was soaring she kept scanning the faces of the other passengers.

But now, after a half week of security, a half-week of lazy relaxation, interspersed with trips into the beautiful hills and quiet country parishes, she was again lulled into a happy lack of fear.

Not wishing to alarm Rose, they had told her nothing. Consequently she termed them a pair of temperamental, unpredictable idiots. "After dawdling all over Cuba, you begin packing in the middle of the night, start tearing back to Havana, then zip over here—"

Ylena's reproach intruded. "To one of the loveliest spots in the world. Anyway, we're not ahead of our schedule. This is precisely when I told Barker we would be here." She looked out over the spacious lawns of the Myrtle Bank hotel to the gem-blue Caribbean. "Yes, Rose, you're in a second Switzerland, in 'Xaymaca' the island of fountains, a wonderland of orchids, lilies, giant ferns, bamboos, cuckoos, humming birds, parrots and butterflies." She ceased in an exhausted giggle.

"Scott told you all that," Rose said.

"What if he did? You're in a hotel so gorgeous it serves nine kinds of cheese for dinner and Scott didn't have to tell me that."

Rose said with smiling petulance, "I don't like cheese—and there's no shower in our bathroom."

Scott stretched lazily in his easy porch chair. Anyway, you're not the type for a shower bath. Rose, you're the type for a perfumed bubble bath. But you like the orchestra because it plays so many dreamy waltzes."

"You said enough about my perfume in Havana, young man!"

"Never mind, Rose. I'll get you some Khush-Khush perfume. It's made of grass, but smells pretty special."

Ylena said, "Oh, Scott! Must you make a chemical analysis of everything?"

He stretched again, in sheer laziness. "I'd like to make a chemical analysis on one of Charles's drinks. Go up and put on the cocktail shade of lipstick and let's get going."

In their double bedroom Rose stood looking out over the sea. "Look! There's another ship coming in. That makes the third one today. Imagine having the boats practically coming in the window. It can't be more than two or three hundred feet."

Ylena moved to her side. "It looks as if we could reach out and touch them."

Through field glasses, Rose was watching the passengers disembark. She pointed with her finger. "That young man must be someone important—at least to himself."

The girl accepted the glasses from Rose and wide green eyes followed Rose's pointing finger. "He used to be important to me. That's Tate Cromwell."

You're Telling Me!

ONE OF the paradoxes of the war is that so many Germans must die in order to gain that living room Hitler told them about.

With a shortage of women's hose threatened, there's probably a number of fair knitters who now wish they'd fashioned those socks smaller—and kept 'em.

Old Marshal Petain, Vichy's chief of state must be pretty sorry. He's even learned how to goose step lately.

Hitler, we read, no longer pays much attention to astrologers.

Now that he's knee deep in Russia, where winters are something fierce, he'd naturally pay more attention to the weatherman.

"Germans Watch Japanese"—headline. Since the Japs right along have been closely eyeing German movements—that's one keyhole that's doing a rushing business.

Nazi planes bombed a bonded warehouse in Scotland. There were no casualties, we understand, even though they did blow up a lot of Scotch.

Mrs. J. R. Hott Honored By Robtown Community

50 Guests Attend Thursday Party For Resident

Mrs. J. R. Hott of Robtown was honored Thursday at a beautifully arranged community party in the parish house of that village. The affair was planned by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Robtown Church as an appreciation for Mrs. Hott, who has been a member of the congregation for 48 years.

The honored guest, who has been a life-long resident of Robtown, will remove in the near future to Circleville where she will reside in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, East Union Street. Mrs. Hott has resided in the same house in Robtown for 48 years, having gone there as a bride. She has belonged to the Robtown Church longer than any other member.

Fifty guests were present, including neighbors, close friends and relatives.

Pink and white gladioli and candles decorated the long table where dinner was served. A feature of the affair was the beautifully decorated cake presented Mrs. Hott by Mrs. Molly Rodgers. It was cut and served with the dessert course.

Mrs. E. R. Brooks as mistress of ceremonies presented a gift from the Aid Society to Mrs. Hott.

Special guests at the party were Mrs. Hott's granddaughters, Mrs. Curtis Wertman, of Circleville and Mrs. Edward Arbogast, Mt. Sterling, and their husbands; her sister, Mrs. Oscar Peters, Mrs. Dean Isam and Mrs. Ernest Lightfoot of Columbus and Mrs. Laura Gray of Ashville. Mrs. Hott's son, Clarence Hott, of North Scioto Street, was unable to be present at the dinner.

The program presented during the evening included a vocal solo, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," Mrs. E. R. Brooks, with Miss Bernice Rowe at the piano; two readings, "The Psalm of Life" and "Louisa," Miss Rowe; two vocal solos, "Tumble-Down Shack" and "Wearyin' for You," Mrs. Cecil Ward and Mrs. Harold Wilson at the piano.

U. B. Aid Society

The August session of the Aid Society of the United Brethren Church was held Thursday in the community house. Mrs. W. B. Cady conducted the short business hour. Plans were made to serve the dinner for the W.C.T.U. Institute to be held in September at the community house.

Mrs. D. E. Klingensmith arranged a program which included readings by Mrs. C. O. Kerns and Miss Nellie Denman; "Melody of Sacred Songs," Miss Polly Jane Kerns; vocal duet, Miss Denman and Mrs. Iley Greeno, and the scripture lesson by Mrs. Sam Hawkes.

Lunch was served to 17 members and visitors by Mrs. Frank Hawkes, Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. Edith Willis and Mrs. L. E. Stevenson.

Bridge Club

Mrs. R. L. Brehmer of North Court Street entertained her contract bridge club Thursday, two tables of players progressing during the evening.

Score prizes were awarded Mrs. William Avis and Mrs. J. Wallace Crist when tallies were compared after the games.

Mrs. Tom Burke, North Pickaway Street will entertain the club in two weeks.

Emmett's Chapel Aid

Emmett's Chapel Ladies' Aid society will meet Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. John Dearth, Wayne Township. Mrs. Sam Dearth and Mrs. Harrison Wolfe of Pickaway Township will be assisting hostesses.

Today's Garden-Graph

Various factors contribute to leaf-scorch, or tip burn. Sometimes it is caused by drought, excessive heat or spray injury due to a toxic action of fungicides or insecticides. Frequently the damage is traced to lack of potash in the soil. In and near industrial cities the injury is frequently caused by escaping poisonous gases and coal smoke.

LEAF-SCORCH ON OAK LEAF

How to prevent leaf scorch

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the margins of the leaves are generally the first to show injury. Horse-chestnuts, maples, oaks and beeches are frequently subject to leaf-scorch. To prevent this happening year after year, such trees should be fed, the soil condition improved and pruning (so as to cut down the leaf surface) plus amply watered.

gram next Thursday, September 4, at 9 p. m., over the NBC Red network. Setting the sharp-voiced comedienne against the rowdy Barrymore in a boarding house comedy proved so successful that a second chapter will be offered. The sketch is again titled "Ma Oliver's Boarding House" and the time is many years later when Rudy, now a radio star, returns for a visit and finds Barrymore still the star non-paying boarder.

DEAN BOOKED

Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, one of baseball's greatest characters, will be guest sports expert on the WKRC-coast-to-coast Mutual network "Quiz Bowl", Friday, September 5, at 9:30 p. m.

The elder brother of "Dizzy and Daffy" fame, the strong young right hander who pitched the immortal "Gas House" Gang to the pennant and World Series championship in 1934, the "Me and Paul" guy who backed up his words with a Sunday pitch that drew millions of fans through the turnstiles, will match wits with the regulars on "Quiz Bowl" and attempt to answer the questions submitted by the nationwide listening audience.

The "Diz" was traded to the Chicago Cubs in 1938 and then showed a "glass arm" and a "nothing pitch" for $185,000.

Dean will fly from St. Louis, where he is now broadcasting play-by-play baseball to Cincinnati, to take part in the weekly half-hour sports quiz, which was originated and is produced by Brad Simpson, program and production chief for WKRC. The program is aired each Friday at the same time from Mutual's Cincinnati studios at WKRC.

YOUNGSTERS WIN RENEWAL

The opening of school is more likely than not to be celebrated by two youngsters at least. Effective September 8th, Olivio Santoro, 12-year-old yodeler, and Marion Loveridge, his 11-year-old singing partner, will be renewed for 13 weeks on their Sunday afternoon program on the NBC Blue network.

FIELDS AIRS NEW MUSIC

To introduce air listeners to Shep Fields' new music, Mutual has turned over to him an entire hour Sunday afternoon from 1 to 2 p. m. This will mark Fields' first network appearance since he organized his new band composed wholly of reeds and woodwinds. In addition he has been scheduled for six broadcasts during the week.

Pollett's Pitching Puts Cardinals Nearer Title

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Today it becomes quite apparent why Larry MacPhail yelled loud and long when the St. Louis Cardinals reached down to Houston, Tex., and plucked young Howard Pollett from the Buffs into the Major League. This 20-year-old southpaw bids fair to change the whole course of the National League pennant drive, especially in regard to Mr. MacPhail's Brooklyn Dodgers.

The neophyte from sun-baked Texas put the Cardinals in the flag fight, more than ever, when he twirled them to a three-hit, 5 to 0, triumph over the New York Giants yesterday and, thereby, reduced the National League lead of Brooklyn's idling Dodgers to a mere game.

The Cardinals begin to wander their way home on this generally quiet day when only the Dodgers and New York meet in the National League and Chicago goes against St. Louis in the American, and, once they arrive at Sportsman's Park, it's mostly up to them. Pollett made it so.

He held the Giants completely at bay, and his teammates bunched five hits and a pair of errors off Cliff Melton, New York's pitcher, to score all their runs in the fourth inning. The Cardinals, after they finish up at Pittsburgh, have the fight in their back yard almost from here to the finish line. The Dodgers must carry their battle on to foreign soil. Brooklyn, possibly has the easier task, facing Philadelphia's futile Phillies a while, but the Cards, only a game in the wake and at home, are even-Stephen.

Pollett made it so, for if the Cardinals had dropped that game to the Giants even Jack Doyle wouldn't take much on the chances that the World Series will be played in Sportsman's Park.

Need Recognized
Branch Rickey, the Simon Legee of the diamond and perhaps one of the craftiest men in the game, saw the Cards' need for Pollett and got him. The boy had been terrific this year. When Rickey brought him up, MacPhail, Mr. L. S. (Loud Squall MacPhail, of the Dodgers) whooped it up that Rickey was smashing the Texas League generally and in particular ruining the pennant chances of Houston. MacPhail's screams were in vain. Pollett is in the big time, and in a big way.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—When Howard Pollett, the most fabulous pitching prodigy to reach the National League since Jerome (Dizzy) Dean burst into the big show with a fanfare of adjectives, joined the St. Louis Cardinals two weeks ago, Jimmy Brown inquired:

"Say, wasn't your earned run average 1.06 in the Texas League?"

"No, it wasn't," replied Pollett politely. "It was 1.09. It was 1.07 until the last two games I pitched for Houston."

"Gosh," whistled Brown, in mock awe. "They certainly must have whaled the dickens out of you those last two games!"

Leo Durocher, Charley Dressen and Kirby Higbe, sinister Brooklyn spies who slipped into the Polo Grounds disguised in clean shirts, were among the stunned spectators who saw the 20-year-old kid pitcher limit the Giants to three stinging hits and hurl the Cardinals to a 5-0 shutout victory yesterday.

The Lippy leader stealthily slipped out of the park at the end of the eighth inning, but he couldn't escape this haunting conclusion: Pollett, rated off his first three Major League pitching assignments, may very well be the "difference" in the sizzling September stretch leading to the golden World's Series rainbow.

COACH EMPLOYED

RADCLIFF'S ANTI-SPEED TRAP LAW EFFECTIVE NEXT FRIDAY

POWERS OF OHIO CONSTABLES HIT BY HOUSE BILL

Township Officials Banned From Making Arrests On State Highways

PATROL, SHERIFF TO ACT

Law Against Passing School Buses Still Permits Local Arrests

Alleged 'speed traps' that have been operating out of justice of peace courts in Ohio during the last several years will no longer exist after next Friday when House Bill No. 615, introduced into the legislature by Representative William Radcliff, and signed by Governor John W. Bricker becomes effective.

After that date constables may no longer pick up drivers on state highways outside of cities and towns in Ohio. They still have the same authority on county and township roads, however.

There is only one exception, the bill points out, and that is in connection with school buses which have stopped to let children get on or off. It is unlawful to pass a school bus standing at the roadside, no matter whether it is on a township, county or state thoroughfare.

The most important angle in the new law reads: "The State Highway Patrol created by virtue of Section 1181-2 of the General Code and county sheriffs or their duly appointed deputies shall exercise, to the exclusion of all other peace officers except within municipalities, the power to make arrests for violations, on all state highways."

The restriction of powers of constables does not mean that drivers may dash over the state highways. The Ohio Highway Patrol has been enlarged and while the officers long have exercised splendid judgment and have been more than fair in most instances, the highways will now be patrolled a little more closely than heretofore. The patrolmen watch out for reckless operators and persons who drive when intoxicated, more than they do for fast drivers.

Several Traps Hit

Several speed traps have operated during the last 10 years between Circleville and Columbus, and numerous Circleville motorists have been ordered into court for seemingly minor infractions, and forced to pay heavy fines or post large bonds.

Another trip is charged by Washington C. H. motorists as operating in Pickaway County on the CCC highway in the Era and Derby area.

Strict enforcement of driving laws in various villages can be expected when the new statute goes into effect. Drivers have come to recognize Mount Sterling, Grove City and other villages in central Ohio as alert in their detection of drivers who violate laws.

EX-MILLIONAIRE PAWNS BORROWED GEMS, LOSES ALL ON SLOW HORSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—With $9,000 in his pocket, raised through pawning borrowed gems, David M. Lion, 62, a former millionaire, journeyed to Saratoga racetrack to recoup his fortune—and spent the entire amount without winning a single bet.

Today Lion was held in $5,000 bail on a grand larceny charge. He was arrested on complaint of Frank Pratt, a jeweler, who claimed he consigned $25,000 worth of jewelry to Lion on the latter's promise to make sales to wealthy friends. Lion, admitting the pawning, pleaded not guilty to the larceny charge.

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled; for the Lord hath spoken this word.—Isaiah 24:3.

Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, returned home Friday after 10 days of medical treatment in a Columbus hospital. Despite weakness, Mr. Fischer is much improved.

Harvey Dresbach and Sennet M. Cryder of Circleville and Frank Bowling of Jackson Township were Friday business visitors in Catlettsburg, Ky.

Joe Bell of North Court Street was a Friday business visitor in Martinsville, O., where he will be a member of the teaching staff of the public schools during the coming school year. Mr. Bell taught last year in East Akron. The Martinsville schools will open Tuesday.

George Towers and Harold Jenkins of Circleville and Dee Early of Walnut Creek Pike returned home Friday after spending several days with other Boy Scouts at the Ohio State Fair.

Fred Ryan of Greenwood, Ind., formerly of Circleville, visited briefly Thursday with friends in this city. Mr. Ryan is commander of Greenwood Post, No. 252, of the American Legion.

Charles Richardson, 518 East Franklin Street, was removed Wednesday to White Cross Hospital, Columbus, for medical treatment.

Frank Turner, 81, of Walnut Street, who was injured severely Wednesday evening when he was struck by a truck just north of the Circleville city limits, remains in 'fair' condition in Berger Hospital. He has two fractures of the right leg and is suffering from shock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bendure of Silver Springs, Md., announce the birth of a son, Russell Howard, Wednesday, in Washington Maternity Hospital, Tacoma, Md. Mrs. Bendure is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howard of Williamsport.

CHESTER MCCAIN PLACED IN JAIL FOR AUTO THEFT

Chester McCain, 19, of Town Street, was lodged in Pickaway County jail Friday on charges of automobile theft, after city police served him with a grand jury capias. McCain was indicted by a previous grand jury, but shortly after indictment was taken to Gallop State Hospital for treatment. He was re-arrested after being discharged from the hospital.

He is charged with the automobile theft of Lonny Ferguson, Lancaster Pike. McCain was arrested first in January, 1941.

MCKINLEY YOUTH PLACED ON TWO-YEAR PROBATION

Robert Lee McKinley of Orient RFD was placed on a two year probation Friday by Judge Meeker Terwilliger after the youth admitted a grand jury indictment of chicken theft. He was one of several Orient and Darbyville community youths who had been taking chickens from neighbors.

The youth is not permitted under his probation to break any law and must pay court costs of $19.50 before the parole becomes effective.

COOK DIVORCE FILED

Charging neglect and asking restoration of her maiden name of Ward, Mrs. Cecil Cook of Ashville filed divorce action Friday in Common Pleas court against Harold Cook, also of Ashville. They were married in Circleville November 25, 1937, and have no children. The plaintiff charges her husband with staying out until early hours of the morning.

Soviet naval base at Baltic Port was captured in a swoop which dealt damaging blows to the modern Russian heavy cruiser Kirov and five additional warships. In addition, 19 Russian transport ships laden with troops and war materials, were sunk, as were a destroyer and nine other ships of varying categories.

Army Dives Deeper

London officially announced that hostilities in Iran had ceased, but the Anglo-Russian army of occupation continued its advance. Improvement in the Far East—situation resulted from the decision of the United States and Japanese governments to look for some basis for an understanding on Pacific problems.

Official quarters in Washington felt that as long as the two nations are conferring in a friendly fashion, there probably will be no shooting.

In Tokyo Japanese quarters adopted a wary attitude, but newspapers hinted that diplomacy may be able to produce a working understanding. Newspaper commentators in the Japanese capital—who in the past have been predicting the "inevitable worst"—today called warfare involving Japan "only a future probability."

Teiichi Muto, writing in the newspaper Hochi, remarked that while Japan is neither pro-British nor pro-American, it could not be regarded as a "fifth columnist for Germany."

In Iran, envoys of the Teheran government met the advanced British troops and informed them officially of the Shah's order to his forces to cease hostilities.

The British and Russian troops continued their advance, however, and it appeared they would keep moving forward until all danger from the presence of German "fifth columnists" has been removed.

Military authorities in Berlin said great clouds of smoke are swirling above the Estonian cities of Tallinn and Baltic Port and that German infantry units soon will sweep into both of these strategic strongholds. The German-Finnish grip on Leningrad was declared to be tightening, and further south a major battle was reported developing in the great stretches of territory between Gomel and Kiev.

Big Dam Blown Up

Moscow admitted that Russian troops have been evacuated from the great power producing center of Dniepropetrovsk and said that great Dnieprostroi dam had been blown up to prevent it from falling "into the hands of the Fascist bandits."

At the same time, Soviet authorities denied German claims that Nazi forces have cut the Leningrad-Moscow railway.

British bombers launched a new daylight attack on the Nazi-held French coast today after attacking Duisburg and other targets in the Ruhr section of Germany during the night.

ANOTHER WEST VIRGINIA DEPOSITION IS PLANNED

Another journey to Clarksburg, W. Va., by attorneys and sheriff's deputies to take depositions in the bad check case against John T. White, a prisoner in the county jail, is scheduled Saturday. E. L. Crist will represent the state and C. A. Weldon is White's attorney. Several other depositions have been taken in the White case, the prisoner being charged with issuing a fraudulent check to the Pickaway County Farm Bureau.

JUDSON LANMAN NAMED NEW COACH AT WALNUT

Judson Lanman, principal of Walnut Township high school, has been designated as athletic coach for the 1941-42 season following resignation of John Rawn of Canal Winchester.

The vacancy left by the belated resignation of Rawn to accept a post at Greenwich, Huron County, caused some juggling of the teaching staff by the school board. Miss Arcelia Wheeler of Portsmouth has been employed as third grade teacher, Miss Ryby Stewart moves from third to fifth grade; Miss Thelma Plum from fifth to sixth grade, and Gordon Southwick from sixth grade to the high school. He had been employed to teach sixth grade and high school mathematics. All his time now will be devoted to the high school.

ARMY AIR CORPS WILL HAUL ALASKAN FREIGHT

DAYTON, Aug. 29.—The Army Air Corps, which now carries military freight all over the nation, is planning to extend its air-freight service over a new 2,000-mile route from Sacramento, Cal., to Ladd Field, near Fairbanks, Alaska.

Wright Field officers announced today that the new line would be started as soon as ships and other necessary equipment became available, but stated they did not know when this would be or just how much equipment would be needed.

The line would be designed particularly to carry motors and airplane parts from the California airplane factories to the expanding air force in Alaska.

The air freight service was begun about a year ago, and is now using approximately 50 twin-motored Douglas transports, many of them contributed by airlines.

SCIOTO TOWNSHIP FILLS TEACHING CORPS FOR '41

GREATEST OHIO FAIR NEARS END

All records broken. In fact, this branch of the exposition this year drew more than 32,000 entries, while ten years ago it struggled along with about 300. Next year the new Junior Fair building, for which Governor Bricker turned the first spadeful of earth, will be completed and ready for occupancy.

Judging results yesterday included: Commercial cattle—Whitehall Farms, Yellow Springs, O., grand champion carlot and best carlot of fat steers weighing 1,100 pounds; Howard Poust, Plain City, O., best carlot 1,100 pounds or over; Tuttle and Mercer, Springfield, best lot of five.

Short-horn cattle—Arnold Brothers, Sterling, Ill., two-year bull. Percheron horses—Fairholme Farms, Lewisville, Ind., stallion 5 years or over; Fairfield Stock Farm, Lancaster, O., stallion 4 years and under; L. C. Hay, Loudonville, stallion one year and under; G. A. Dix & Sons, Delaware, O., group of three stallions; L. C. Hay, mare 4 years and under 5. At last night's horse show, Sweet Campernell, owned by V. V. Cooke, of Louisville, Ky., won over Buccaneer, owned by Miss Mary Fisher, of Detroit, in the featured $500 three-gaited stake for horses under 15.2 hands.

In the $500 championship stake for fine harness, the judge marked Noble Kalamara, owned by Jack Thompson, of Hodgenville, Ky., first. Blitzkrieg, owned by Laddie G. Andahazy, Cleveland, celebrated his first show in "any ring by winning the touch-and-out event for jumpers.

Other winners included Hasty Lassie, owned by Mrs. A. E. Reuben, of Toledo, and Pollyanna Peavine, owned by George E. Crendon, of Cleveland.

Further judging results included:

Southdown sheep—Earl Jenkins, Ashley, O., champion ram, best aged sheep, best ram lamb, best yearling ewe, best pen of lambs and best exhibitor's flock.

Spotted Poland Chinas swine—R. and G. Long & Son, Arlington, O., senior champion boar, and grand champion boar; Walter McCoy, Washington C. H., O., senior champion boar. Crissinger & George Cochran & Sons, Caledonia, O., senior champion sow.

Berkshire swine—Raymond Martin, Wooster, O., senior champion boar, grand champion boar, junior sow pig, and junior yearling boar; George W. Bowsher & Sons, Wapakoneta, O., best boar two years old and over; Maxwell K. Hisey, Homerville, O., best senior yearling boar; Littlejohn Stock Farm, Christiansburg, O., best senior boar pig; C. B. Teegardin & Sons and Harley H. Runke, Ashville, O., best junior boar pigs and junior champion boar.

Holstein cattle—C. B. Siddell, Atwater, O., Junior Champion bull.

Aberdeen Angus cattle—Stanley Pierce, Creston, Ill., grand champion bull and grand champion female.

PAULDING O., PUBLISHER'S WIDOW IS AUTO VICTIM

PAULDING, Aug. 29.—An inquest was to be held today in the traffic death of Mrs. N. R. Webster, widow of the publisher of the Paulding Democrat. She was killed instantly when struck by an automobile driven by Grant Rose Jr., 29-year-old farmer of near Cecil.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Webster was crossing a street in front of her home on U. S. Route 127. She had planned to move into a newly built home today.

Rose, according to Deputy Sheriff Roy Bates, said he was blinded by lights of an oncoming automobile and failed to see the pedestrian.

Mrs. Webster is survived by a son, C. R. Webster of Versailles, O.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE, IN ITS final effort to boost the bill yesterday, approved an increase from 10 to 15 percent in the admissions tax; increase of one percent in corporation surtax over house bill, boost from five to 10 percent on local telephone bills, and a special 10 percent tax on electric light bulbs.

One of the major questions to be decided today is reconsideration of a special provision designed to deprive eight community property states in the south and west of their alleged tax advantages. If the provision is killed, over $50,000,000 will be cut from the bill.

The $3,688,500,000 measure—biggest peace-time tax bill—will touch virtually every individual through income, sales and other taxes.

Other Taxes Listed

A married man with a $3,000 income would pay $138 taxes under the bill, assuming he had no other deductions. Here are some other taxes he and others might pay:

Ten percent on his monthly telephone bill; 15 percent on movie admissions; $5 annual tax for using his automobile; seven percent on new automobiles; five cents a pound on new tires; 13 cents on a deck of playing cards; 10 percent on a new radio, phonograph, musical instruments and electric light lamps; 10 percent on a new refrigerator; two cents a thousand on matches; five percent on a railroad ticket; 10 percent on sporting goods, a new handbag, a washing machine, jewelry, a fur coat, cosmetics and other similar levies.

A corporation faces a variety of taxes. First, there is a normal income tax. The rates are: first $5,000 earnings, 15 percent; next $15,000, 17 percent; next $5,000, 19 percent; over $25,000, 24 percent.

Then it pays a special surtax of six percent on earnings over $25,000, and a seven percent surtax on those over that amount. If it makes excess profits, it pays from 35 to 60 percent on them.

The individual income tax rate which starts at a combined normal and surtax rate of 10 percent, goes up to over 78 percent on the biggest incomes. The individual income tax exemption is $750 for single persons and $1,500 for married persons.

ARMY DOES NOT PLAN NEW CAMP IN COUNTY AREA

Brigadier General Answers Chamber Of Commerce's Protest Telegram

ALL LOCATIONS CHOSEN

Chillicothe Investigations Have No Bearing On Current Plans

Establishment of an army camp in the Pickaway-Ross County area is not contemplated at the present time. This information came direct from the War Department Friday.

Brigadier General J. A. Ulio, acting Adjutant General, wrote in reply to a telegram sent to the Secretary of War by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce in protest against establishment of the proposed camp in the county. The Chamber cited that 50,000 acres of the highest producing soil in the nation would be erased from Pickaway County and that it believed the land in production would serve national welfare better than if it were used for a camp site.

General Ulio's letter follows: "Receipt is acknowledged of your telegram of August 22nd, addressed to the Secretary of War, concerning the possible location of an Army cantonment in Ross and Pickaway Counties, Ohio.

"All camp sites for the Army at its present strength have been selected and additional cantonments are not required at the present time.

"Investigations made in the Chillicothe area were a matter of long range planning and have no bearing on current plans. Establishment of a camp near Chillicothe is not contemplated at the present time."

CONDEMNED MAN WILL DIE WITH HIS CELL MATE

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Aug. 29.—The final wish of Eldon Hawk, 26, condemned murderer, will be granted today.

Hawk requested that he be permitted to die in San Quentin's lethal gas chamber today with John William Lininger, 40, another condemned slayer.

Instead of appealing for clemency, Hawk has repeatedly asked Gov. Culbert L. Olson to permit him to die with Lininger.

During their confinement in death-row, Hawk and Lininger became pals. In a final letter to the governor yesterday, Hawk said:

"I want to die because only then can I find peace, quiet and beauty I've never known on earth."

Hawk said he would take his own life by refusing medical treatment with insulin if the governor did not grant his final wish. He is a diabetic.

Hawk was sentenced to die for the 1940 slaying of Lee Arris, retired San Diego mechanic. Lininger was convicted of killing Louis E. Jette, 28, with poison in a cabin near Red Bluff last year.

NEGRO ADMITS SEVEN MURDERS

Washington D. C. Police Clear Up Baffling Sex Cases

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — Police early today obtained confessions of seven rape murders from Jarvis Roosevelt Catoe, 38-year-old Washington Negro.

The confessions solved the sex slayings of Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 23, war department clerk, formerly of Des Moines, Ia., killed in Washington, June 15; Mrs. Evelyn Dorothea Andersen, 26, waitress, killed in the Bronx, New York, on August 4; Mrs. Rose Abramowitz, formerly of Kansas City, killed in the capital March 8, and the rape murders of four Negro women in Washington. He also confessed to raping five other Washington women in recent months.

Catoe was first taken into custody for questioning in the sex-slaying of Mrs. Andersen. The first tangible clue which led to his arrest came when New York police traced a wrist watch stolen from the waitress to a Harlem pawnshop and then located the girl who pawned the watch. She told police that Catoe had given her the watch and also a handgun which was taken from Mrs. Andersen. She gave them his Washington address.

THE PRESIDENT'S LABOR DAY TALK OF IMPORTANCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—President Roosevelt hinted today that a Labor Day radio broadcast he will make from his Hyde Park home would be of significance in relation to the international situation.

When asked to comment today on the general world outlook as the second anniversary of the outbreak of the European war approached, Mr. Roosevelt replied that he was making a radio address on Labor Day—which happened to be the actual date of that anniversary.

MANY MILLIONS FOR DEFENSIVE WORK REQUIRED

Senate Committee To Wind Up Important Statute For $3,688,500,000

BUDGET CHIEF CALLED

Smith To Be Asked How He Would Reduce Expenses By Two Billion

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—With the Senate Finance Committee planning to complete a $3,688,500,000 tax bill today, the treasury informed the committee that a second tax measure will be proposed almost immediately after the present legislation becomes law.

The second bill, though designed chiefly to solve administrative problems, may be made the vehicle for raising additional hundreds of millions to help finance the expanding defense program.

The committee, which plans to present its new bill to the Senate next Wednesday, sought to raise the total of $4,000,000,000, but failed when some proposed new taxes were found unacceptable. It had, however, raised the total nearly $500,000,000 above the bill as it passed the House.

"We did the best we could," said Democratic Leader Barkley who advocated boosting the total to $4,000,000,000.

"It is a pretty tough bill as it is," commented Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich.

Non-Defense Items Hit

The measure will go to the Senate, however, with the finance committee backing a move launched by Sen. Byrd (D) Va., to force the New Deal to slash non-defense expenditures.

The committee called on Budget Director Harold Smith to report to congress how he would cut non-defense expenditures a billion, a billion and a half or two million if he were ordered to do so.

A provision was incorporated in the bill creating a joint committee to be composed of six members.

NEW SEVEN MAN BOARD HANDLES DEFENSE TASKS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — A general shakeup in defense agencies all down the line was forecast today after President Roosevelt created a new seven-man super defense board to administer a priorities program that will gradually pinch off output of a tremendous amount of civilian goods so that raw materials can be diverted to production of war weapons.

Creation of the board, which marks a shift from peace-time to war time economy, was authorized in an executive order signed by Mr. Roosevelt. Vice President Henry A. Wallace was named as chairman. The other six members are Harry L. Hopkins, lease-lend coordinator, Price Administrator Leon S. Henderson, Defense Chief William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, Secretary of Navy Knox and Secretary of War Stimson.

However, the strong man of the new defense setup who emerged from the reshuffling by President Roosevelt is Donald Nelson, former Chicago mail order house executive and until last night OPM purchasing director. Nelson was selected by Mr. Roosevelt to be the executive officer of the new super defense agency. Nelson also was named as the new director of priorities succeeding E. R. Stettinius Jr., who was shifted to become lease-lend administrator.

The seven-man board was charged with drawing up the board defense policies. After it makes the policies, it will be up to Nelson to carry them out. Nelson has seen more eye-to-eye with the New Deal than most of the 400 dollar-a-year men who have been drafted into various agencies.

French Leader's Condition Grave

Vichy Says Concern Being Expressed For Ex-Premier, Shot By Young Gunman

VICHY, France, Aug. 29.—The condition of former Premier Pierre Laval, victim of an anti-Nazi assassin, gave new cause for alarm today despite reassuring statements from the doctors attending him in Paris.

Laval's temperature has increased slightly, it was learned. The possibility of a hemorrhage or peritonitis exists, it was said, but if neither of these complications develop, he should recover normally.

(Editor's Note: The London Star reported from an undisclosed source that Laval's condition has suddenly become worse, requiring an emergency consultation among his doctors.)

Meanwhile, all members of the anti-Bolshevik brigade which Laval was inspecting when he was shot were reported under arrest as a precautionary measure.

Paris newspapers said the arrests were carried out by authorities in German-occupied France to prevent further assassination attempts.

Communists were still being rounded up in the occupied and unoccupied zones alike as a sequel to the attempt to kill Laval, chief advocate of French collaboration with the Nazi Reich.

(Editor's Note: A Paris dispatch received by way of Berlin confirmed that arrests were continuing and that an unidentified woman standing near Laval's would-be assassin was stabbed by an unknown assailant during the excitement. Five eminent French surgeons have replaced the German army physicians originally assigned to Laval's care, it was said.)

Paris newspapers said the gunman, Paul Colette, whose bullets wounded Laval, Marcel Deat and two others, was formerly a member of Col. Larocque's French social party but that he quit this political group "because they were too collaborationist."

RECONNAISSANCE NEED DESCRIBED BY ARMY CHIEF

ROSTON, Ark., Aug. 29.—Premature commitments of troops in battle without proper reconnaissance was pointed out today by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., Seventh Corps commander, as the greatest fault of the Second Army's Arkansas maneuvers.

At a critique attended by all officers of the corps, General Richardson declared that such tactics, if followed in actual war, would produce "terrible losses." Both sides in the latest war problem, he said, had "much to learn."

Charging that both sides failed to make "deep reconnaissance," the commander added: "This is deplorable. The utility of slamming huge masses of men headlong into each other without knowing the entire situation should be realized and the lesson learned."

"Personally I believe in the cavalry spirit—to go around them. I think we should all have more daring, more imagination."

The forces of Maj. Gen. Lawton, commander of the 33rd Division of Illinois guardsmen, were criticized rather severely for failing to "take into account all features of the terrain."

On the matter of maintaining communications lines in battle, Gen. Richardson urged officers to take advantage of commercial telephone lines where necessary, and he mentioned that the 27th Division of New York troops "has done this several times to good effect." He commented generally on the improvement of the corps' communications by radio and other means.

GREATEST OHIO FAIR NEARS END

Newspapermen Are Guests; Every Person Entering Gate Boosts Record

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29 — Ohio's 91st State Fair, greatest in history and with all records for the entire week already smashed, comes to a close today with a program dedicated to the press, to the home, to conservation and to national defense.

More than 500 newspaper editors and writers from all parts of the state were guests of Fair Manager Win Kinnan at the noon press luncheon. They were addressed by Governor Bricker after a welcoming speech by State Agriculture Director John T. Brown. The response was given by Roy D. Moore, president of the Brush-Moore newspaper chain.

Highlight of yesterday's show was the tour of the grounds by the governor—who tore his coat when clambering over the seven-foot rail fence surrounding the cattle auction—and the naming of the healthiest boy and girl in the state.

Sixteen-year-old Mary Jane Williams, of Mt. Gilead, and Gordon Rogers, 18, of Van Wert, were the winners of the "healthiest" titles in the finals of the 4-H Club health competition. Mary scored 970 points of a possible 1,000, while Rogers' point was 981.

Week's Mark Broke

Everytime the turnstiles clicked today meant a new attendance record. The old record for the entire week, the 1939 figure of 258,086, was surpassed sometime yesterday morning, for at noon the total attendance was 268,657. So far attendance is about 50,000 above the 1940 figure, when rain held the grand total to 229,295.

The success of the fair was further evidenced by the fact that every one of the extra-fare events—the horse show, the harness races, and the nightly musical cavalcade, "By Dawn's Early Light,"—has played to sell-out audiences at every performance.

The Junior Fair also closes with

SIX PERSONS DIE AS DRIVER FAILS TO WATCH TRAIN

HARRINGTON, Del., Aug. 29 —Kent County authorities planned a thorough inquest today into an automobile-train collision which took the lives of six persons, including a mother and her four children, at Powell's crossing, two miles south of Harrington.

The dead were William J. Derickson, 42, Harrington, driver of the car; Mrs. Violet Salmons, 40, Farmington, sister of Derickson, and her children—Louise, 10, Grace, eight, Charles, six, and Stella, two.

Police said a fast north-bound Pennsylvania milk - passenger train collided with Derickson's car when the motorist started across the track after allowing a south-bound freight train to pass.

COLLECTION DAY

Tomorrow will be regular collection day for The Daily Herald carriers. Please have your change ready.

Found!! Brenda's Successor

FACED with the necessity of finding a replacement for Brenda Frazier, who automatically relinquished her long-held position as cafe society's "Glamor Girl No. 1" by assuming the new title of Mrs. John "Shipwreck" Kelly, debutantes and society boys met in New York's Stork club and chose Miss Betty Cordon, above, as the "Glamor Girl of 1941-42." To the accompaniment of popping flash bulbs, the 18-year-old daughter of a prominent banker assured newsmen that (1) "I'm very excited"; (2) "I didn't expect it"; (3) "I do not think I am the glamor type."

MOTHER OF SIX STATE WORKMAN DAY OLD CHILD ALMOST BURIED HEART VICTIM IN GRAVEL PIT

A heart attack only an hour after she was returned from Berger Hospital to her home in Salt-creek Township with her six day old baby caused death Thursday at 5:15 p. m. of Mrs. Ora Mae Arledge, 25, wife of John Francis Arledge.

The child, named Doris, was born in the hospital a week ago, and Mrs. Arledge and her baby were released from the hospital in apparent good health Thursday.

The mother's death was sudden, and came as a shock to many friends and relatives in Pickaway County. The baby, her third child, is getting along well.

Mrs. Arledge was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Kerns, her father living in Saltcreek Township, two miles north of Saltcreek school. Her mother is dead. Her husband, father and three children, Barbara Ann, 5; Carolyn Mae, 2, and Doris, six days old, and the following brothers and sisters, Mrs. Harry Arledge, Kingston; Ralph Kerns, Circleville Route 1; Mrs. Charles Metzger, Circleville Route 1; Glenn, Circleville Route 4; Mrs. Morris Vanscoy, Columbus, and Mrs. Floyd Arledge, Kingston, survive.

The body will be taken Saturday to the home of James Arledge, her father-in-law, southeast of Dresbach Church. The funeral will be Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at Dresbach Church, the Rev. L. S. Metzler officiating. Burial will be in the church cemetery by the Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Friends may call at the James Arledge home Saturday afternoon.

CHICAGO JUDGE BREAKS UP HOUSEWIVES' GAMING

CHICAGO, Aug. 29—A group of Chicago housewives who had formed a club for what was termed "a little sociable gambling" today were under court order to disband their club and confine their gambling to their own homes.

Twenty of the housewives were found engaged in a dice game in clubrooms rented for the purpose, and two were arrested as operators of a gambling place. Municipal Judge J. M. Braude released the women on their promise to break up the club.

BERLIN, Aug. 29 — A secret conference between Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini on the Russian battle-front was disclosed today.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — President Roosevelt today said the question of peace in the Pacific is, like the ocean itself, too broad to venture an opinion at present whether war can be averted there.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 — The Berlin radio today reported a declaration by the director of the Department of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Tokyo to the effect that "an agreement with the United States has taken place," according to a broadcast picked up in New York by NBC.

By International News Service War-weary Japan put her hundred million civilians on a virtual battle footing today—just in case—although all signs pointed to a speedy diminution of tension between Nippon and the United States.

While German forces surged toward Leningrad, capturing Estonia's capital of Tallinn and severing the vital railway line which connects the one-time Russian imperial capital with the western world, momentous measures were undertaken in Tokyo.

A decree handed down by the cabinet of Premier Prince Fumimaro Konohe ordered immediate fulltime mobilization of labor to eliminate the "leisure class," end all unemployment and gear the Far Eastern Island empire for whatever may come.

At the same time, Lieutenant Commander Kengo Tominaga, speaking on behalf of the Japanese navy, charged in a nationwide broadcast that the United States had gone far beyond mere collaboration with the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at Chungking.

Washington, he charged, has now assumed full and acknowledged leadership of a campaign to "encircle" Japan with the aid of Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies.

Reuter, Britain's authoritative news agency, reported from Tokyo that the chiefs of Japan's army, navy and air force had been summoned to an emergency cabinet session to discuss American-Japanese relations in the light of yesterday's virtually unprecedented conference between President Roosevelt and Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura.

Washington, however, held to the outlook that an early improvement of the Far Eastern prognosis was in sight.

All the news of the Russo-German war came from Berlin, which cascaded a new series of triumphant announcements. Not only was Tallinn taken, the German capital said but the new

HARRIMAN WILL DIRECT U. S. MISSION TO SOVIET

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—President Roosevelt disclosed today that W. Averell Harriman will head the U. S. mission to the joint conference at Moscow with Soviet and British authorities looking to a coordination of greater resistance to the German threat.

Full personnel of the mission, which will include high-ranking army and navy officers, will be announced early next week.

COUNTY SCHOOL MEN TO CONFER HERE SATURDAY

Superintendents To Hear Healthier And Relief Directors, Others

PREPARE FOR OPENING

Classes To Start Monday, Tuesday In Various Buildings

Pickaway County school superintendents will gather Saturday at the county school office in the courthouse to discuss arrangements for opening classes next Monday and Tuesday. Some of the schools will get under way Labor Day, with teachers' meetings and short class sessions, while others will wait for Tuesday and start with full schedules.

Superintendent George D. McDowell said that several matters of importance would be conducted during the meeting, including election of a secretary, that position now being filled by Harold Strous of Salt Creek Township; distribution of supplies and forms and explanation of forms; an address by Dr. A. D. Blackburn on the health program for schools; an outline by Delos H. Marcy, relief director, of the school lunch program and surplus commodities, in addition to other subjects that may be brought up during the session.

It is expected that the meeting will last until noon, starting at 9:15 a. m.

State Director Speaks Sept. 13

The first meeting of the new school year for rural teachers will be September 13 at Walnut Township school, with Kenneth Ray, new state director of education, as the principal speaker.

Others on the program will include Walton B. Bliss, executive secretary of the Ohio Education Association; Harold J. Bowers, supervisor of certification, and Mrs. Sarah Dover, whose topic will be "Eye-handicapped Children and Their Problems".

The program has not been completed, but music is expected to be furnished by Walnut Township pupils.

INITIAL COUPLE LICENSED UNDER NEW STATE LAW

The first marriage license sought under the new state law that requires physical examination of both parties was granted Thursday by Judge Lemuel B. Weldon to Robert John Shadley, 24, 209 East High Street, and Dorothy Belle Soule, of 164 East High Street.

Pan-American Aces Go To Rescue of British

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—President Roosevelt didn't announce it, but there were two big reasons why Pan-American Airways is taking over the ferrying of airplanes across the South Atlantic and up the interior of Africa to the Near East.

One reason has since been published, the need of American warplanes to help the British in Iran and thus protect Russian oil fields in the Caucasus.

The other has not been published—namely that the British had been wrecking an extraordinarily large number of brand new planes in flying them across Africa.

As a matter of cold, unpleasant fact, the British have been losing about 20 percent of the planes we have been giving them.

This was partly because the British did not use their own pilots, but Czech, French, Poles and Dutch.

These aviators, sometimes too full of sice gin, and sometimes not too well trained in the tough job of handling fast war planes, have succeeded in scattering the wrecks over the heart of Africa.

Furthermore, central Africa is one of the most uncharted and difficult flying areas in the world. The hop across the Atlantic has not caused the casualties. It is the remainder of the flight, from Freetown on the West African coast, up to Egypt.

This is why Roosevelt finally called upon Pan American Airways to take over the African hop. Its pilots have done a brilliant job of pioneering the jungles of the Amazon and the peaks of the Andes. And Roosevelt figured that if anyone could fly over Africa, Pan American could do it.

HUEY LONG vs. LaFOLLETTE

Genial David Lynn, Architect of the Capitol, didn't realize what a hornet's nest he was poking when he ordered the statue of Robert M. LaFollette, Sr., one of the showpieces of the Capitol's famed Statuary Hall, moved forward two feet.

Followers of the late Huey Long have been on Lynn's neck ever since, accusing him of trying to "hide" the statue of their hero, located next to that of LaFollette. However, what they don't know is that the man chiefly responsible for the rearrangement was not Lynn, but the famous sculptor, Jo Davidson.

Davidson executed the stone image of LaFollette in 1929 and is immensely proud of it. On a recent visit to the Capitol, he was walking through Statuary Hall with Lynn when he noticed that his work was partially hidden from view by the bronze figure of the Louisiana Kingfish.

"You can't see the profile of LaFollette when you walk in here from the Rotunda," complained Davidson. "Can't something be done about it?"

Lynn agreed with Davidson and promised to move the LaFollette statue forward two feet, placing it a half-foot in front of Huey's. Within a few hours Lynn began receiving phone calls hotly protesting the change. Several callers inquired if Long's statue had "disappeared." Lynn is politely answering all the complaints, but has no intention of rescinding his order.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Taking a cue from the German Stuka dive bombers, U. S. Army engineers have included a powerful siren in the midget M3 tanks. Its shrill shriek freezes green troops, and the Army is counting on its scare power, at a seventy mile an hour speed, to make advance breaks through enemy lines.

turned the tables and invaded Russia, there was a large Russian army isolated down in the Caucasus where it could not take part in the defense of the Ukraine. Transportation is difficult and these troops could not return. Neutral military experts who knew about the situation, thought the Germans had pulled a neat trick.

It now develops, however, that these Russian troops in the Caucasus may prove a life saver. In the first place they will be needed there to defend the vital Russian oil-fields. Second, it was the presence of this powerful force which permitted the Russians to advance into Iran more quickly than the British.

Finally, this route through the Caucasus and Iran now turns out to be the chief line of communication between Russia and her new ally, Great Britain. There are only three possible means of getting British supplies into Russia: (1) Archangel and the Arctic, which in addition to being frozen, is already virtually cut off by German troops; (2) Vladivostok which can be shut off by Japan; and (3) through the Gulf of Persia and Iran.

This latter is the shortest route and the one which will be used. It is a rough, tough route with one mountain-winding highway and no railroad. But at least there are ample Russian troops on hand to guard it—thanks to advance Nazi trickery which backfired.

Note—These troops will be especially needed if Hitler decides to invade Turkey and close in on the Caucasian oil fields from two directions.

While the secretary of commerce is a member of the U. S. president's cabinet, he is not in line of succession to the presidency.

NAZI TRICK BACKFIRES

There is one military joke that Nazi military chiefs thought they had pulled on the Russians shortly before the June invasion, which has now backfired on them. It looks as if the Russians would have the last laugh.

Last spring and winter, when Stalin and Hitler were still friends, Berlin kept holding up to Russia the prize plum of Iran, Iraq, and a long cherished Russian outlet to the sea through the Gulf of Persia. This, Germany said, could easily be wrenched away from the British. To this end, Nazi generalissimo suggested that Russian troops be concentrated along the Iranian border ready to pounce on this lush prize.

Prisoners Face Court Saturday

Arraignments Set For 9 A. M. Before Judge Terwilliger; 15 Indicted

Judge Meeker Terwilliger of Common Pleas court will conduct arraignment at 9 a. m. Saturday for prisoners indicted by the grand jury that met the first three days this week.

The jurors returned 15 indictments, included among which is one for manslaughter, two for burglary and larceny of an inhabited dwelling, one for arson, three for statutory offenses, one for driving when intoxicated; one for failing to provide, one for forgery, one for assault and battery and three of burglary and larceny in theft of chickens.

Two secret indictments were also returned, but no information will be announced concerning these two cases until arrests of the persons named have been made.

Two May Be Sent To Local Sheriff

Release of two Mansfield reformatory prisoners to Pickaway County authorities, if local officials want them, was announced this week. The prisoners named are Harry Boy and Forest Wonderly, both of whom are serving time from Marion County on robbery charges.

They will be released October 1 to Sheriff Charles Radcliff if he wants to return them here for trial on similar charges. The sheriff said Friday that he couldn't recall on what charge they may be wanted here, but he intended to check his records during the day to determine the nature of complaint against them.

If Pickaway County doesn't take the prisoners they will remain in the reformatory until next August.

WARREN HOBBLE NAMED COACH AT MADISON MILLS

Warren E. Hobble, former coach at New Holland, has been employed as coach and teacher at Madison Mills school, Fayette County. Hobble has been coaching at Jefferson Township in Clinton County. He has had 12 years of experience, including several successful terms at New Holland.

Last year his team went 20 games without a defeat and won the Clinton County title.

Hobble is a graduate of Rio Grande College.

DIDN'T LIKE RELATIVES, BUT DEATH PLAN FAILS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29 — An apparent suicide attempt was frustrated today for Albert Schuer, 80, who, poised for a leap from the Detroit-Superior high level bridge over the Cuyahoga River, was pulled to safety by Otto G. Doehner, a city fireman. Doehner saw the man prepare for the jump as he was driving across the span with his wife last night.

Doehner jammed on his brakes, dashed across the sidewalk and caught Schuer by the seat of his trousers as he swung one foot over the rail. Schuer told police he retired as a tailor two years ago and didn't get along with his relatives.

LOGAN ELM IS SCENE

Greensburg, Pa., Worthington
Men Choose Historical Subjects

Dr. J. Paul Harman of Greensburg, Pa., and Dr. Joseph A. Leighton of Worthington, O., will be principal speakers October 5 when the annual exercises sponsored by the Ohio History Day Association are conducted at Logan Elm State Park.

The program, to be staged under the spreading limbs of the mighty elm, will start at 2 o'clock.

Dr. Harman's subject will be: "Bouquet's March to Free Ohio Indian Captives".

"The Religion of the Indians Particularly of the Northwest Territory" will be used by Dr. Leighton.

Both speakers are widely known authorities on early history, and the program gives promise of being highly interesting.

Announcement will be made at a later date concerning music and other features to be offered in addition to the speakers.

The History Day Association annually draws many hundreds to the state park south of Circleville. Mrs. Howard Jones of Park Place is president of the Association.

Call for Men Trained In Engineering Sounds

A call for reserve officers who possess a background in engineering, architecture, or construction, was issued Friday by Lt. Col. B. F. Vandervoort, Fifth Zone Construction Quartermaster.

Anticipating the start of additional defense construction work in Zone V (Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia), the Zone office has begun a survey of available reserve officers who may be called to active duty or who may be transferred from their present assignments to accept duty as Constructing Quartermasters and Assistant Constructing Quartermasters or Utilities Officers in the Zone.

A two-fold problem is faced by the construction division of the Quartermaster Corps with respect to commissioned officers. First, a majority of the officers now on construction duty with the Quartermaster Corps belongs to other arms and services such as infantry, field artillery, coast artillery, signal corps, etc., and faces possible recall to permanent assignments. Second, additional construction projects are expected to start soon in Zone V thereby increasing demand for officers in this work.

Lt. Col. Vandervoort has circulated all officers on duty with Constructing Quartermasters in Zone V, requesting them to submit applications for permanent transfer to the Quartermaster Corps. In addition, the Zone Office is seeking to obtain the names of other officers who are either on duty or who have not yet been called to active duty, who would be qualified to serve in various capacities with the construction division of the Quartermaster Corps.

Officers interested in serving with this division of the Quartermaster Corps, which is supervising construction of more than $275,000,000 worth of munitions plants, proving ground facilities, troop housing, warehousing and maintenance and repair work in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia, are requested to address a letter to the Zone Constructing Quartermaster, Zone V, 232 North High Street, Columbus.

The first sewing machine to sew plain stitches was designed in 1790 by Thomas Saint, an Englishman. His machine was designed chiefly for sewing on leather.

INVESTIGATION HELD IN YOUNG MOTHER'S DEATH

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29.—An investigation was launched today by Coroner S. R. Gerber into the fatal shooting of Mrs. Helen Pesta, 27-year-old mother of a four-week-old baby, whose death police tentatively described as suicide.

Gerber said the investigation was ordered after it was discovered that Mrs. Pesta had been shot twice through the heart, and not once as reported earlier by police. The coroner said he wanted to determine the possibility of the victim having fired a second bullet after being mortally wounded by the first.

The woman's body was found yesterday by her husband, Frank, who said he found his wife on the floor, a .38-caliber revolver nearby. Relatives told police Mrs. Pesta had been despondent over ill health.

TO ALL OF US

FRIENDS: This is a note to every person in Circleville, just a reminder that Circleville is in a serious condition, financially speaking. Failure of council and other city officials to get out and "sell" the public on the need of passing the defeated one and one-half mill levy a couple weeks ago, and refusal of Circleville voters to realize the need for the money that could have been raised by this levy has left the city in a tough spot. All departments should be cut because there isn't money to meet payrolls, or to pay other current expenses, such as light, water and fuel bills. It just can't be done when the old mazuma isn't there; and it isn't there. School opens in Circleville September 8, and with the opening of school there will be scores of little children going back and forth between their homes and the various school buildings. In the last couple of years school areas have been patrolled by a city officer, lessons in safety have been explained for the youngsters, and as a result Circleville's total of injuries received by children to and from school is very low. Now the question is voiced whether an officer will be available to patrol the school districts. Likely, there will be no patrolman available for this job. And it's a shame. But, it all reverts back to the lack of community interest in vital issues at stake. Maybe Circleville has not taken care of its money, and maybe it has. The fact remains that the treasury is bare, that bills will go on.

CIRCUITEER.

TO GRAND JURORS

MEN, WOMEN: Congratulations to you for making a recommendation that flasher lights be placed at two of Pickaway County's more dangerous rural intersections, Routes 159 and 56 and Routes 104 and 56. There isn't any question that these two crossings are dangerous, that flashers are needed and that the state highway department should see that they are spotted at the proper places without delay. A grand jury's recommendation should carry considerable weight, so I hope that proper authorities see that pressure is applied in the right places. A few years ago a flasher light was spotted at

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE
FRANK MURPHY evidently does not agree with guessers who have surmised that Herr Hitler wouldn't have attacked Russia if he could have helped it, but that his army leaders launched the campaign in spite of him.

In his recent Atlantic City talk before the Knights of Columbus meeting, he put the entire responsibility up to Adolf. He didn't offer an outright explanation of his obvious assumption that the Fuehrer started the fighting on the Nazis' eastern frontier, but the guessers inferred one from the general nature of his address, and it does have the ring of a certain amount of plausibility.

The guessing fraternity, in this country and probably in others, has been puzzled all along to account for Berlin's policy in favor of pitching into the Soviet outfit with its forces so considerably engaged elsewhere. Nobody's imagined that the mere existence of a friendly pact between himself and Joe Stalin would have served to deter Adolf from opening fire on his Muscovite neighbors whenever he deemed it, from his standpoint, a good time to do so. Plenty of observers, however, have wondered why he thought the time ripe when he actually did it. He was pretty busy already elsewhere. Why didn't he prefer to wait until, and if, he had the democracies all disposed of?

Some suggestions have been made that he suspected Comrade

Stalin of planning to jump him by surprise in the midst of his activities in the opposite direction. That theory hardly holds water, though. Joe very manifestly didn't want to get into a rumput with Germany yet awhile. He put up with a deal of Adolf's Balkan rearrangements that he can't have liked, and didn't say much about it. He didn't begin shooting until he had to.

SUPPLIES THEORY WEAK

There's also the hypothesis that the Nazis took the warpath into Soviet territory to grab oil, grain and miscellaneous raw material that they need now and propose to keep as their very own, on into perpetuity. Still, Russia was letting 'em have these supplies anyway. It's conceivable that the Fuehrer had it in mind to acquire, not only the supplies, but also the Russian soil that they're grown on and from which they're dug up and bored for. But why couldn't that detail have been left until later?

In short, the guessers haven't given Herr Hitler credit for a bit of decency, but they HAVE given him credit for a lot of good judgment, and his attack on Russia, at this particular juncture, hasn't made sense to 'em, on that supposition.

That's how the notion was evolved that, disregarding his preference, the German army command, traditionally anti-Russian, tore loose against the Soviet bunch in spite of him.

But Justice Murphy's implied guess is another one. The justice didn't definitely enunciate it, but the expert guessers are doing it for him.

The dope is that Adolf willed the attack, but not for the sake of attacking Russia—for the sake, instead, of winning over the Christian democracies to the Axis.

The reasoning, for whatever it may be worth, is this: Adolf finally came to realize that the democracies will lick him in the long run. Accordingly, he said to himself, "I've got to get that aggregation into cahoots with me, or I'm done for. How accomplish it? Well, the democracies are Christians and the Communists are a crew of rank infidels. I'll spring a holy war on 'em. Then the democracies will HAVE to line up with me. Having done so, they CAN'T lick me."

NOT AS SCHEDULED

It didn't work out that way. The democracies are backing Russia—not Communism, but RUSSIA versus Nazism and Fascism and Spanish Falangism, as allied with Nazism and Fascism. It's another guess whether or not Adolf's "holy war" would have made more of a hit with the Christian democracies if he and his fellow Nazis hadn't started off so anti-religiously that their "holy war" gets the ha-ha when they proclaim it.

If it's a fact that Adolf was trying to win over the democracies, to spare his life, by jumping on "infidel Russia," that's one of the funniest features of it all.

Anyway, the guessers are indebted to Justice Murphy for their newest hunch.

"So you're paying my salary, eh? Well, now, you see I really earn it."

DIET AND HEALTH

Former Players Agree on Dangers of Football

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● In my crusade against injuries resulting from the present football rules and organizations, I do not get support entirely from sisters or the parents of boys on high school and college football teams.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Last year I had a number of letters from ex-players, even ex-stars, supporting my views and saying that they would never let their sons play football.

I quote from one of these: "I have, as you know, been a doctor for a good many years, and have been trying to live down the past as having been associated with football as a player, a coach, and an official. I have seen the game from every angle. The net result to me was a loss of so many teeth as to seriously impair my general health for many years. That is not to mention injuries to my knee that caused me many sleepless nights of agony."

Serious Injuries

"At one time I made a study of football players engaged in a big game, and found that all of the high school students who played through the game had blood cells in the urine. This may have been psychological, but if often repeated can not help being serious."

"Within the past four years I have had three cases of ruptured kidney referred to me, all results of a football injury. Two of the cases were high school boys. In both cases it was necessary to remove the kidney to save life."

"What is the matter that this can go on? The game is profitable to everyone but the player."

Other Players Write

Another excerpt from my correspondence is as follows: "I played high school football; too much of it. Because I have a suspicion that the ill effects of the sport do not become evident until years later and I think so-called minor injuries often develop into something serious later on. In one game I was bent backwards. The boys started piling on and pretty soon I was supporting most of them on my arched back. Now, at twenty-eight, about once a year, my back goes bad with the least strain."

"I agree with you that the matter ought to be taken in hand by the public. The son of a man here who struggles to keep his children in school had a boy who spent last January, February and March in the hospital with the attendant expense and care."

Cracked Vertebra

My morning paper carries the following item:

"Hollywood: Nine years ago, when he was playing prep football at Mercersburg, Virginia, John Payne, film star, husband of actress Ann Shirley, was kicked in the back."

"Although he didn't know it at the time, he cracked his third vertebra, and now, years later, Payne is forced to undergo a spinal operation."

And all for what? For playing a game that is supercharged with commercialism; which long ago lost its amateur standing, and which is a complete and unmitigated bore to the spectators because of the constant change in rules.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. S.: "I seem to have an insatiable desire for candy, and can easily eat a full pound of candy at any time. My weight is normal and yet I feel certain I should not eat as much candy as I do. Is it a bad habit, or is it some deficiency in my system?"

Answer: I believe it is a bad habit.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

"TAKE YOUR eyes off him and keep them off," Scott told the nervous, terrified girl, after she had revealed the man was Clarkson, the old Vincent butler. He reached for her hand. The palm was cold and sweaty. "Drink your drink. Act natural."

"I can't act natural. I'm scared and I can't help it," she said tremulously.

Hamilton felt the convulsive sharpness of her fingernails. "Oh, be sensible, Ylena, it's absurd for you to be scared. He's the one to be scared. He will be when he sees you."

"No, he won't. He doesn't know I helped trap him."

"Then let's tell him."

"She made a quick refusal. 'No, no! That would be worse.' She was watching Clarkson with a sideways look. 'He's so mean, Scott, through and through.' Her breath sharpened, and he sees me now. He'll probably come over here to pay me—mouthed respects, and all the while he's talking, he'll be trying to think up something mean to do to me."

"Then we'll beat him to it, we'll go speak to him first. I think I can squelch him." Scott clamped strong, comforting fingers about the girl's bare arm, lifted her insistently, and started toward Clarkson's table before he could start toward theirs.

"He can't possibly harm you so long as you're with me. I'll do most of the talking," he said under his breath.

Clarkson was standing when they reached him, in a smiling bow, insolence beneath its homage. In answer to the girl's nod, he said in oily hypocrisy, "How nice to see you, Mrs. Vincent—or Miss Varanoff, I should say. Please forgive me."

Scott laughed heartily as his fingers forcefully propelled Ylena to a chair. He then released her and answered the foxlike grin of their table partner. "Go ahead! Call her Mrs. Vincent. That's right. I've effected a reconciliation. He tossed a calling-card before Clarkson's astounded gaze. "I'm Cosmo Harrison, the attorney. Yes, I've done the impossible. With Vernon Stone's help we brought them together again. He beamed toward Ylena. "Have we, my dear?"

Eyes downcast, the girl nodded and outrageous color stained her face. Scott cried with joy. "Watch her blush!" and cackled in raucous laughter. He flung an arm toward a waiter. "Champagne. We've got a celebration on hand."

In a sly voice Clarkson insinuated, "I'm surprised Mr. Vincent isn't with you."

Though raging inside, Scott Hamilton's laughter boomed forth again. He even slapped the overly curious scoundrel on the arm in a comradely fashion, realizing of fensive civility was a strong weapon of Ylena's. What Clarkson really wished to know was Vincent's whereabouts.

"Theodore Vincent is a changed man! Yes, sir, a changed man. He trusts his wife. Besides, he's joining us tomorrow. Flying down from Miami Beach. You'll want to see each other, of course."

Clarkson hastened to say, "I'm not sure—"

Scott Hamilton broke in. "What's that? Ylena told me you had worked for her husband for years, that he was most devoted to you. You both would be disappointed if you didn't meet again—of course you're going to see him!"

Clarkson searched the other man's face, blandly smiling, then dampened his dry lips in champagne before he spoke. "I was only trying to say I wouldn't be in Santiago tomorrow. Various interests keep me traveling. I'll probably be miles away by tomorrow. In fact, I should have gone today." Small beads of sweat stood out on his forehead as he raced through stammering words.

"Where are you going?" Hamilton asked in rude bluntness. "It's hard to tell. The north coast of South America, I should say."

Scott Hamilton said with confidence, "We'll probably run into you somewhere as we go through the Canal. We're on our way west."

He smiled pleasantly into Clarkson's disconcerted face. "Besides, Scott, simply because you have the broadest shoulders outside of a boxing arena, don't be sure you've scared him away."

"He's plenty bothered," Scott derided, then laughed. "He just upset his wine."

Ylena looked over and saw a waiter busy with a cloth. "All the same, he's not yet frightened out of the water. You're dealing with a sneak, Scott. He's puzzled now, but when he calms down enough to think and ask a few questions about us—I'm not so sure."

"Perhaps you're right. We'll have Pepe scout us back to Havana, then fly down to Jamaica. He motioned a waiter to his side and began a consultation about their orders. "And," he concluded, "I would like to speak to the officer leaning against the bar."

Immediately the policeman was at their table. "Is there anything wrong, sir?"

Hamilton quieted his arm instantly. "No, indeed! I merely thought you might be able to tell the name of the artist who did these water colors. We especially admire that one of the little boy at market, with the pigs." Deliberately he pointed to the one hanging directly above Clarkson's head. The police officer turned a frowning scrutiny in that direction. Scott said, "They, ARE pigs, aren't they?"

The uniformed man peered again, nodding his head up and down. "Oh, yes," and went into rapid gesticulating details. He then gave the artist's name, or rather, chain or names.

In despair, Scott said, "That's too much for me. Would you mind writing it?"

Under the officer's second look, Clarkson had begun toidget. He took out a cigarette, then put it back in his case, unlighted. His eyes narrowed with worried perplexity, as he watched Ylena's table partner continue his engrossing conversation with the officer. Was this lawyer, Harrison, Clarkson wondered, as good naturedly and stupidly ignorant of the situation between him and his former employer, as he seemed to be? What did he know? What didn't he know? Why did they keep looking over at him, pointing? And what had the attorney said to the officer, to make him write so carefully on his little pad?

Sudden music blared forth, and dancers moved onto the floor, shutting out the view of Clarkson, snuffing anger and pale beneath his tan. In appreciation of the policeman's information, Scott Hamilton gave him a bill, then further detained him with a glass of wine. As he left the table the music ceased and dancing couples milled back to their chairs. Through closely-meshed lashes, Ylena stole a glance at the table near the door. Clarkson had fled.

Safe at the hotel in Kingston, the girl realized that her heart had been trip-hammering from the moment she first saw Clarkson in the native cave, until they climbed aboard the plane for Jamaica. Even when the ship was soaring she kept scanning the faces of the other passengers.

But now, after a half week of security, a half week of lazy relaxation, interspersed with trips into the beautiful hills and quiet country parishes, she was again lulled into a happy lack of fear.

Not wishing to alarm Rose, they had told her nothing. Consequently she termed them a pair of temperamental, unpredictable idiots. "After dawdling all over Cuba, you begin packing in the middle of the night, start tearing back to Havana, then zip over here—"

Ylena's reproach intruded. "To one of the loveliest spots in the world. Anyway, we're not ahead of our schedule. This is precisely when I told Barker we would be here."

She looked out over the spacious lawns of the Myrtle Bank hotel to the gem-blue Caribbean. "Yes, Rose, you're in a second Switzerland, in 'Xaymaca' the island of fountains, a wonderland of orchids, lilies, giant ferns, bamboos, cuckoos, humming birds, parrots and butterflies." She ceased in an exhausted giggle.

"Scott told you all that," Rose said.

"What if he did? You're in a hotel so gorgeous it serves nine kinds of cheese for dinner and Scott didn't have to tell me that."

Rose said with smiling petulance, "I don't like cheese—and there's no shower in our bathroom."

Scott stretched lazily in his easy porch chair. Anyway, you're not the type for a shower bath, Rose. You're the type for a perfumed bubble bath. But you like the orchestra because it plays so many dreamy waltzes."

"You said enough about my perfume in Havana, young man!"

"Never mind, Rose. I'll get you some Khush-Kush perfume. It's made of grass, but smells pretty special."

Ylena said, "Oh, Scott! Must you make a chemical analysis of everything?"

He stretched again, in sheer laziness. "I'd like to make a chemical analysis on one of Charlie's dreams. Go up and put on the cocktail shade of lipstick and let's get going."

In their double bedroom Rose stood looking out over the sea. "Look! There's another ship coming in. That makes the third one today. Imagine having the boats practically coming in the window. It can't be more than two or three hundred feet."

Ylena moved to her side. "It looks as if we could reach out and touch them."

Through field glasses, Rose was watching the passengers disembark. She pointed with her finger. "That young man must be someone important—at least to himself."

The girl accepted the glasses from Rose and wide green eyes followed Rose's pointing finger. "He used to be important to me. That's Tate Cromwell."

Mrs. J. R. Hott Honored By Robtown Community

50 Guests Attend Thursday Party For Resident

Mrs. J. R. Hott of Robtown was honored Thursday at a beautifully arranged community party in the parish house of that village. The affair was planned by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Robtown Church as an appreciation for Mrs. Hott, who has been a member of the congregation for 48 years.

The honored guest, who has been a life-long resident of Robtown, will remove in the near future to Circleville where she will reside in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ward, East Union Street. Mrs. Hott has resided in the same house in Robtown for 48 years, having gone there as a bride. She has belonged to the Robtown Church longer than any other member.

Fifty guests were present, including neighbors, close friends and relatives.

Pink and white gladioli and candles decorated the long table where dinner was served. A feature of the affair was the beautifully decorated cake, presented Mrs. Hott by Mrs. Molly Rodgers. It was cut and served with the dessert course.

Mrs. E. R. Brooks as mistress of ceremonies presented a gift from the Aid Society to Mrs. Hott.

Special guests at the party were Mrs. Hott's granddaughters, Mrs. Curtis Wertman, of Circleville, and Mrs. Edward Arbogast, Mt. Sterling, and their husbands; her sister, Mrs. Oscar Peters, Mrs. Dean Isham and Mrs. Ernest Lightfoot of Columbus and Mrs. Laura Gray of Ashville. Mrs. Hott's son, Clarence Hott, of North Scioto Street, was unable to be present at the dinner.

The program presented during the evening included a vocal solo, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses," Mrs. E. R. Brooks, with Miss Bernice Rowe at the piano; two readings, "The Psalm of Life" and "Louisa," Miss Rowe; two vocal solos, "Tumble-Down Shack" and "Wearyin' for You," Mrs. Cecil Ward and Mrs. Harold Wilson at the piano.

U. B. Aid Society

The August session of the Aid Society of the United Brethren Church was held Thursday in the community house. Mrs. W. B. Cady conducted the short business hour. Plans were made to serve the dinner for the W.C.T.U. Institute to be held in September at the community house.

Mrs. D. E. Klingensmith arranged a program which included readings by Mrs. C. O. Kerns and Miss Nellie Denman; "Melody of Sacred Songs," Miss Polly Jane Kerns; vocal duet, Miss Denman and Mrs. Iley Greeno, and the scripture lesson by Mrs. Sam Hawkes.

Lunch was served to 17 members and visitors by Mrs. Frank Hawkes, Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. Edith Willis and Mrs. L. E. Stevenson.

Bridge Club

Mrs. R. L. Brehmer of North Court Street entertained her contract bridge club Thursday, two tables of players progressing during the evening.

Score prizes were awarded Mrs. William Avis and Mrs. J. Wallace Crist when tallies were compared after the games.

Mrs. Tom Burke, North Pickaway Street will entertain the club in two weeks.

Emmett's Chapel Aid

Emmett's Chapel Ladies' Aid society will meet Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. John Dearth, Wayne Township. Mrs. Sam Dearth and Mrs. Harrison Wolfe of Pickaway Township will be assisting hostesses.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Valentine, who have been spending some time in San Diego, Cal., will spend the week end with Mr. Valentine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Val Valentine, of near Stoutsville before returning to their home in Hamilton. Today's Garden-Graph

Various factors contribute to leaf-scorch, or tip burn. Sometimes it is caused by drought, excessive heat or spray injury due to a toxic action of fungicides or insecticides. Frequently the damage is traced to lack of potash in the soil. In and near industrial cities the injury is frequently caused by escaping poisonous gases and coal smoke.

LEAF-SCORCH ON OAK LEAF

How to prevent leaf scorch

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the margins of the leaves are generally the first to show injury.

Horse-chestnuts, maples, oaks and beeches are frequently subject to leaf-scorch. To prevent this happening year after year, such trees should be fed the soil condition improved and pruning (so as to cut down the leaf surface) plus amply watered.

Texas-born Mexicans are sometimes known locally as Tex-Mex.

gram next Thursday, September 4, at 9 p. m., over the NBC Red network. Setting the sharp-voiced comedienne against the rowdy Barrymore in a boarding house comedy proved so successful that a second chapter will be offered. The sketch is again titled "Ma Oliver's Boarding House" and the time is many years later when Rudy, now a radio star, returns for a visit and finds Barrymore still the star non-paying boarder.

DEAN BOOKED

Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, one of baseball's greatest characters, will be guest sports expert on the WKRC-coast-to-coast Mutual network "Quiz Bowl", Friday, September 5, at 9:30 p. m.

The elder brother of "Dizzy and Daffy" fame, the strong young right hander who pitched the immortal "Gas House" Gang to the pennant and World Series championship in 1934, the "Me and Paul" guy who backed up his words with a Sunday pitch that drew millions of fans through the turnstiles, will match wits with the regulars on "Quiz Bowl" and attempt to answer the questions submitted by the nationwide listening audience.

The "Diz" was traded to the Chicago Cubs in 1938 and then showed a "glass arm" and a "nothing pitch" for $185,000. Dean will fly from St. Louis, where he is now broadcasting play-by-play baseball to Cincinnati, to take part in the weekly half-hour sports quiz, which was originated and is produced by Brad Simpson, program and production chief for WKRC. The program is aired each Friday at the same time from Mutual's Cincinnati studios at WKRC.

YOUNGSTERS WIN RENEWAL

The opening of school is more likely than not to be celebrated by two youngsters at least. Effective September 8th, Olivio Santoro, 12-year-old yodeler, and Marion Loveridge, his 11-year-old singing partner, will be renewed for 13 weeks on their Sunday afternoon program on the NBC Blue network.

FIELDS AIRS NEW MUSIC

To introduce air listeners to Shep Fields' new music, Mutual has turned over to him an entire hour Sunday afternoon from 1 to 2 p. m. This will mark Fields' first network appearance since he organized his new band composed wholly of reeds and woodwinds. In addition he has been scheduled for six broadcasts during the week.

NEWS NOTES

After a Baltimore vaudeville appearance, Ralph Edwards airs

his "Truth or Consequences" program from New York this Saturday evening... Benay Venuta is being auditioned for a new program... Both Lionel Barrymore and Edna May Oliver have been set for monthly appearances on the Rudy Vallee show... Mark Warnow has again been signed as musical director of the resuming Helen Hayes program... Richard Stark, the announcer, now has five programs for the same soap sponsor.

Dinah Shore will be a busy songbird for the next ten days. Over the weekend she'll headline at a new vaudeville theatre in Brooklyn.

Pollett's Pitching Puts Cardinals Nearer Title

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Today it becomes quite apparent why Larry MacPhail yelled loud and long when the St. Louis Cardinals reached down to Houston, Tex., and plucked young Howard Pollett from the Buffs into the Major League. This 20-year-old southpaw bids fair to change the whole course of the National League pennant drive, especially in regard to Mr. MacPhail's Brooklyn Dodgers.

The neophyte from sun-baked Texas put the Cardinals in the flag fight, more than ever, when he twirled them to a three-hit, 5 to 0, triumph over the New York Giants yesterday and, thereby, reduced the National League lead of Brooklyn's idling Dodgers to a mere game.

The Cardinals begin to wonder their way home on this generally quiet day when only the Dodgers and New York meet in the National League and Chicago goes against St. Louis in the American, and, once they arrive at Sportsman's Park, it's mostly up to them. Pollett made it so.

He held the Giants completely at bay, and his teammates bunched five hits and a pair of errors off Cliff Melton, New York's pitcher to score all their runs in the fourth inning. The Cardinals, after they finish up at Pittsburgh, have the fight in their back yard almost from here to the finish line. The Dodgers must carry their battle on to foreign soil. Brooklyn, possibly has the easier task, facing Philadelphia's futile Phillies a while, but the Cards, only a game in the wake and at home, are even-Stephen.

Pollett made it so, for if the Cardinals had dropped that game to the Giants even Jack Doyle wouldn't take much on the chances that the World Series will be played in Sportsman's Park.

Need Recognized

Branch Rickey, the Simon Legee of the diamond and perhaps one of the craftiest men in the game, saw the Cards' need for Pollett and got him. The boy had been terrific this year. When Rickey brought him up, MacPhail, Mr. L. S. (Loud Squall) MacPhail, of the Dodgers, whooped it up that Rickey was smashing the Texas League generally and in particular ruining the pennant chances of Houston. MacPhail's screams were in vain. Pollett is in the big time, and in a big way.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—When Howard Pollett, the most fabulous pitching prodigy to reach the National League since Jerome (Dizzy) Dean burst into the big show with a fanfare of adjectives, joined the St. Louis Cardinals two weeks ago, Jimmy Brown inquired:

"Say, wasn't your earned run average 1.06 in the Texas League?"

"No, it wasn't," replied Pollett politely. "It was 1.09. It was 1.07 until the last two games I pitched for Houston."

"Gosh," whistled Brown, in mock awe. "They certainly must have whaled the dickens out of you those last two games!"

Leo Durocher, Charley Dressen and Kirby Higbe, sinister Brooklyn spies who slipped into the Polo Grounds disguised in clean shirts, were among the stunned spectators who saw the 20-year-old kid pitcher limit the Giants to three stingy hits and hurl the Cardinals to a 5-0 shutout victory yesterday.

The Lippy leader stealthily slipped out of the park at the end of the eighth inning, but he couldn't escape this haunting conclusion: Pollett, rated off his first three Major League pitching assignments, may very well be the "difference" in the sizzling September stretch leading to the golden World Series rainbow.

COACH EMPLOYED

RADCLIFF'S ANTI-SPEED TRAP LAW EFFECTIVE NEXT FRIDAY

POWERS OF OHIO CONSTABLES HIT BY HOUSE BILL

Township Officials Banned From Making Arrests On State Highways

PATROL, SHERIFF TO ACT

Law Against Passing School Buses Still Permits Local Arrests

Alleged 'speed traps' that have been operating out of justice of peace courts in Ohio during the last several years will no longer exist after next Friday when House Bill No. 615, introduced into the legislature by Representative William Radcliff, and signed by Governor John W. Bricker becomes effective.

After that date constables may no longer pick up drivers on state highways outside of cities and towns in Ohio. They still have the same authority on county and township roads, however.

There is only one exception, the bill points out, and that is in connection with school buses which have stopped to let children get on or off. It is unlawful to pass a school bus standing at the roadside, no matter whether it is on a township, county or state thoroughfare.

The most important angle in the new law reads: "The State Highway Patrol created by virtue of Section 1181-2 of the General Code and county sheriffs or their duly appointed deputies shall exercise, to the exclusion of all other peace officers except within municipalities, the power to make arrests for violations, on all state highways."

The restriction of powers of constables does not mean that drivers may dash over the state highways. The Ohio Highway Patrol has been enlarged and while the officers long have exercised splendid judgment and have been more than fair in most instances, the highways will now be patrolled a little more closely than heretofore. The patrolmen watch out for reckless operators and persons who drive when intoxicated, more than they do for fast drivers.

Several Traps Hit

Several speed traps have operated during the last 10 years between Circleville and Columbus, and numerous Circleville autoists have been ordered into court for seemingly minor infractions, and forced to pay heavy fines or post large bonds.

Another trip is charged by Washington C. H. motorists as operating in Pickaway County on the CCC highway in the Era and Derby area.

Strict enforcement of driving laws in various villages can be expected when the new statute goes into effect. Drivers have come to recognize Mount Sterling, Grove City and other villages in central Ohio as alert in their detection of drivers who violate laws.

EX-MILLIONAIRE PAWNS BORROWED GEMS, LOSES ALL ON SLOW HORSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—With $9,000 in his pocket, raised through pawning borrowed gems, David M. Lion, 62, a former millionaire, journeyed to Saratoga racetrack to recoup his fortune—and spent the entire amount without winning a single bet.

Today Lion was held in $5,000 bail on a grand larceny charge. He was arrested on complaint of Frank Pratt, a jeweler, who claimed he consigned $25,000 worth of jewelry to Lion on the latter's promise to make sales to wealthy friends. Lion, admitting the pawning, pleaded not guilty to the larceny charge.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled; for the Lord hath spoken this word.—Isaiah 24:3.

Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools, returned home Friday after 10 days of medical treatment in a Columbus hospital. Despite weakness, Mr. Fischer is much improved.

Harvey Dresbach and Sennet M. Cryder of Circleville and Frank Bowling of Jackson Township were Friday business visitors in Catlettsburg, Ky.

Joe Bell of North Court Street was a Friday business visitor in Martinsville, O., where he will be a member of the teaching staff of the public schools during the coming school year. Mr. Bell taught last year in East Akron. The Martinsville schools will open Tuesday.

George Towers and Harold Jenkins of Circleville and Dee Early of Walnut Creek Pike returned home Friday after spending several days with other Boy Scouts at the Ohio State Fair.

Fred Ryan of Greenwood, Ind., formerly of Circleville, visited briefly Thursday with friends in this city. Mr. Ryan is commander of Greenwood Post, No. 232, of the American Legion.

Charles Richardson, 518 East Franklin Street, was removed Wednesday to White Cross Hospital, Columbus, for medical treatment.

Frank Turner, 81, of Walnut Street, who was injured severely Wednesday evening when he was struck by a truck just north of the Circleville city limits, remains in 'fair' condition in Berger Hospital. He has two fractures of the right leg and is suffering from shock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bendure of Silver Springs, Md., announce the birth of a son, Russell Howard, Wednesday, in Washington Maternity Hospital, Tacoma, Md. Mrs. Bendure is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howard of Williamsport.

CHESTER McCAIN PLACED IN JAIL FOR AUTO THEFT

Chester McCain, 19, of Town Street, was lodged in Pickaway County jail Friday on charges of automobile theft, after city police served him with a grand jury capias. McCain was indicted by a previous grand jury, but shortly after indictment was taken to Gallipolis State Hospital for treatment. He was re-arrested after being discharged from the hospital.

He is charged with the automobile theft of Lonny Ferguson, Lancaster Pike. McCain was arrested first in January, 1941.

McKINLEY YOUTH PLACED ON TWO-YEAR PROBATION

Robert Lee McKinley of Orient RFD was placed on a two year probation Friday by Judge Meeker Terwilliger after the youth admitted a grand jury indictment of chicken theft. He was one of several Orient and Darbyville community youths who had been taking chickens from neighbors.

The youth is not permitted under his probation to break any law and must pay court costs of $19.90 before the parole becomes effective.

COOK DIVORCE FILED

Charging neglect and asking restoration of her maiden name of Ward, Mrs. Cecil Cook of Ashville filed divorce action Friday in Common Pleas court against Harold Cook, also of Ashville. They were married in Circleville November 25, 1937, and have no children. The plaintiff charges her husband with staying out until early hours of the morning.

Soviet naval base at Baltic Port was captured in a swoop which dealt damaging blows to the modern Russian heavy cruiser Kirov and five additional warships. In addition, 19 Russian transport ships laden with troops and war materials, were sunk, as were a destroyer and nine other ships of varying categories.

Army Dives Deeper

London officially announced that hostilities in Iran had ceased, but the Anglo-Russian army of occupation continued its advance. Improvement in the Far East situation resulted from the decision of the United States and Japanese governments to look for some basis for an understanding on Pacific problems.

Official quarters in Washington felt that as long as the two nations are conferring in a friendly fashion, there probably will be no shooting.

In Tokyo Japanese quarters adopted a wary attitude, but newspapers hinted that diplomacy may be able to produce a working understanding. Newspaper commentators in the Japanese capital—who in the past have been predicting the "inevitable worst"—today called warfare involving Japan "only a future probability."

Not "Columnist"

Teichi Muto, writing in the newspaper Hochi, remarked that while Japan is neither pro-British nor pro-American, it could not be regarded as a "fifth columnist for Germany."

In Iran, envoys of the Teheran government met the advanced British troops and informed them officially of the Shah's order for his forces to cease hostilities.

The British and Russian troops continued their advance, however, and it appeared they would keep moving forward until all danger from the presence of German "fifth columnists" had been removed.

Military authorities in Berlin said great clouds of smoke are swirling above the Estonian cities of Tallinn and Baltic Port and that German infantry units soon will sweep into both of these strategic strongholds. The German-Finnish grip on Leningrad was declared to be tightening, and further south a major battle was reported developing in the great stretches of territory between Gomel and Kiev.

Big Dam Blown Up

Moscow admitted that Russian troops have been evacuated from the great power producing center of Dniepropetrovsk and said that great Dnieprostroi dam had been blown up to prevent it from falling "into the hands of the Fascist bandits."

At the same time, Soviet authorities denied German claims that Nazi forces have cut the Leningrad-Moscow railway. British bombers launched a new daylight attack on the Nazi-held French coast today after attacking Duisburg and other targets in the Ruhr section of Germany during the night.

ANOTHER WEST VIRGINIA DEPOSITION IS PLANNED

Another journey to Clarksburg, W. Va., by attorneys and sheriff's deputies to take depositions in the bad check case against John T. White, a prisoner in the county jail, is scheduled Saturday. E. L. Crist will represent the state and C. A. Weldon is White's attorney. Several other depositions have been taken in the White case, the prisoner being charged with issuing a fraudulent check to the Pickaway County Farm Bureau.

Myrt the Flirt

Brought from Australia, Myrtle the Maggie quickly made friends with members of the Aussies on duty in North Africa and has been adopted as mascot of one of the regiments. She is shown perched atop one of the warriors' tin hats.

JUDSON LANMAN NAMED NEW COACH AT WALNUT

Judson Lanman, principal of Walnut Township high school, has been designated as athletic coach for the 1941-42 season following resignation of John Rawn of Canal Winchester.

The vacancy left by the belated resignation of Rawn to accept a post at Greenwich, Huron County, caused some juggling of the teaching staff by the school board. Miss Arcelia Wheeler of Portsmouth has been employed as third grade teacher, Miss Ryby Stewart moves from third to fifth grade; Miss Thelma Plum from fifth to sixth grade, and Gordon Southwick from sixth grade to the high school. He had been employed to teach sixth grade and high school mathematics. All his time now will be devoted to the high school.

ARMY AIR CORPS WILL HAUL ALASKAN FREIGHT

DAYTON, Aug. 29.—The Army Air Corps, which now carries military freight all over the nation, is planning to extend its air-freight service over a new 2,000-mile route from Sacramento, Cal., to Ladd Field, near Fairbanks, Alaska.

Wright Field officers announced today that the new line would be started as soon as ships and other necessary equipment became available, but stated they did not know when this would be or just how much equipment would be needed.

The line would be designed particularly to carry motors and airplane parts from the California airplane factories to the expanding air force in Alaska.

The air freight service was begun about a year ago, and is now using approximately 50 twin-motored Douglas transports, many of them contributed by airlines.

SCIOTO TOWNSHIP FILLS TEACHING CORPS FOR '41

William Gatten of Londonderry, Ross County, has been employed by the Scioto Township board of education as sixth grade teacher, and with his employment the board completes its staff for the next year.

Gatten has had five years of experience in Ross County, obtaining his education at Wilmington College.

all records broken. In fact, this branch of the exposition this year drew more than 32,000 entries, while ten years ago it struggled along with about 300. Next year the new Junior Fair building, for which Governor Bricker turned the first spadeful of earth, will be completed and ready for occupancy.

Judging results yesterday included: Commercial cattle — Whitehall Farms, Yellow Springs, O., grand champion carlot and best carlot of fat steers weighing 1,100 pounds; Howard Foust, Plain City, O., best carlot 1,100 pounds or over; Tuttle and Mercer, Springfield, best lot of five.

Shorthorn cattle—Arnold Brothers, Sterling, Ill., two-year bull. Percheron horses — Fairholme Farms, Lewisville, Ind., stallion 5 years or over; Fairfield Stock Farm, Lancaster, O., stallion 4 years and under; L. C. Hay, Loudonville, stallion one year and under; G. A. Dix & Sons, Delaware, O., group of three stallions; L. C. Hay, mare 4 years and under 5.

At last night's horse show, Sweet Campenell, owned by V. V. Cooke, of Louisville, Ky., won over Buccaneer, owned by Miss Mary Fisher, of Detroit, in the featured $500 three-gaited stake for horses under 15.2 hands.

In the $500 championship stake for fine harness, the judge marked Noble Kalamara, owned by Jack Thompson, of Hodgenville, Ky., first. Blitzkrieg, owned by Laddie G. Andahazy, Cleveland, celebrated his first show in any ring by winning the touch-and-out event for jumpers.

Other winners included Hasty Lassie, owned by Mrs. A. E. Reuben, of Toledo, and Pollyanna Peavine, owned by George E. Crendon, of Cleveland.

Further judging results included: Southdown sheep — Earl Jenkins, Ashley, O., champion ram, best aged sheep, best ram lamb, best yearling ewe, best pen of lambs and best exhibitor's flock.

Spotted Poland Chinas swine—R. and G. Long & Son, Arlington, O., senior champion board, and grand champion board; Walter McCoy, Washington C. H., O., senior champion board. Crissinger & George Cochran & Sons, Caledonia, O., senior champion sow.

PAULDING O., PUBLISHER'S WIDOW IS AUTO VICTIM

PAULDING, Aug. 29.—An inquest was to be held today in the traffic death of Mrs. N. R. Webster, widow of the publisher of the Paulding Democrat. She was killed instantly when struck by an automobile driven by Grant Rose Jr., 29-year-old farmer of near Cecil.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Webster was crossing a street in front of her home on U. S. Route 127. She had planned to move into a newly built home today.

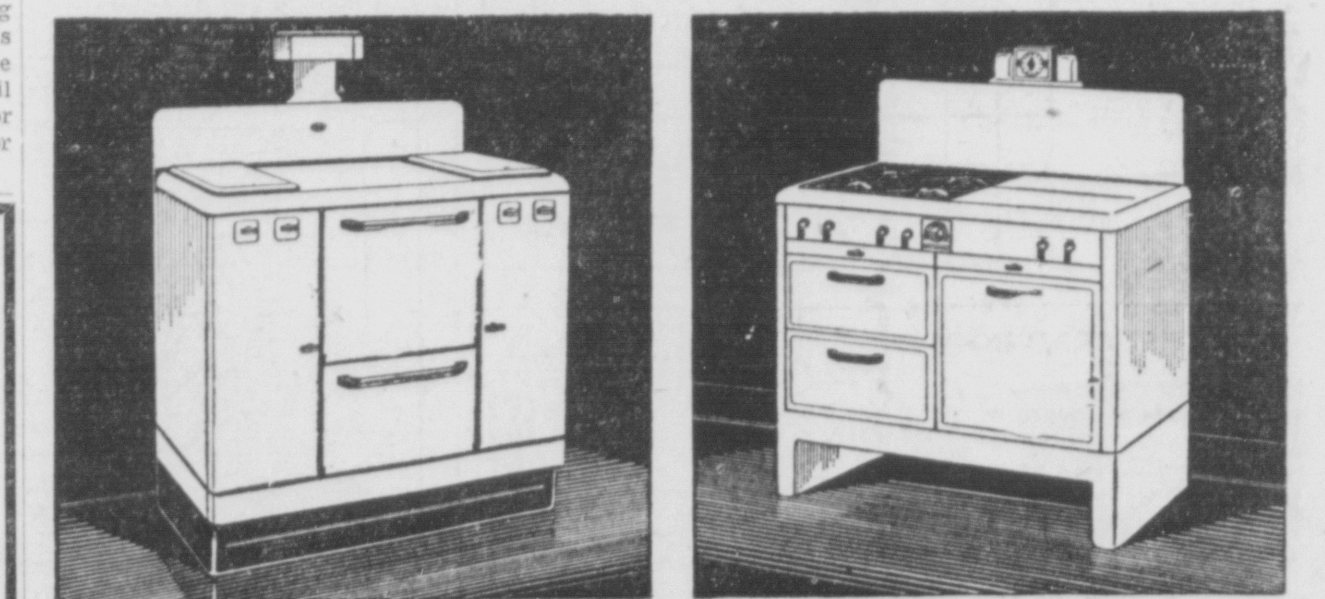

Rose, according to Deputy Sheriff Roy Bates, said he was blinded by lights of an oncoming automobile and failed to see the pedestrian.

Mrs. Webster is survived by a son, C. R. Webster of Versailles, O.

A NEW GARAGE SOON PAYS FOR ITSELF

If you are now keeping your car in a public garage, or are renting a garage from your neighbor, why not build one of your own? The rent money you save will soon pay for it and the value of your property will be enhanced. If you are leaving your car outside, the wear and tear will cost more than a new garage. Also consider building a double garage for income purposes.
